Set Aside $50,000 to War on Liquor In Foreign Mission Fields

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—The Presbyterian church today entered the fight to bring world wide prohibition and abolish the cigarette.

In its annual program of reform, made public through the board of temperance and moral welfare here today, the church announced it would work for the following

Elimination of the brewer and distiller in foreign fields.

Abolition of the cigarette.

The church has set aside $50,000 to start its fight against brewers and distillers in foreign mission fields, it was announced, and has sent the Rev. John Steele, associate secretary of the board to England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales to aid in the prohibition fight.

An "especial target for attack will be the cigarette, which became so firmly entrenched during the war," the board's announcement declared. Prof. J. H. Dickason, formerly of Wooster College, has been selected to lead this crusade and already has started a series of lectures against the "tag."

Family and juvenile work will be under supervision of Prof. W. A. McKee, formerly of the University of Kansas.

Winfield S. Hall, formerly of Northwestern University medical school, will have charge of social hygiene and sex relations reforms.

The board's headquarters is in Pittsburgh, with Dr. Charles Scanlon as general secretary.

FIRES ON BANKER IN SANTA BARBARA HOME

SANTA BARBARA, Cal. Dec. 27.—Whether a man who says he is Geo. Brent, a laborer, is sane or had a grudge against Chas. A. Edwards, a leading Santa Barbara banker, was the matter for police investigation here today.

Bryant was arrested last night, accused of firing several shots through the window of the Edwards home as Edwards and his daughter, Miss Miriam, were seated at the dinner table. None of the shots took effect.

Police say Bryant admitted the shooting.

WILL FORCE LEAGUE AS CAMPAIGN FEATURE

Enemies of Covenant Form Organization to Compel Action By Voters

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—An organization to force the league of nations into the 1920 campaign as an issue, whether the senate ratifies the treaty or not, has been perfected by senators who are opposed to any form of treaty ratification.

Branches of this organization already are at work in six states. By the time the presidential primaries and state conventions for selection of delegates to the national convention begin, the organization will be represented in every state, senators declared.

The movement is non-partisan, its backers declared today. Their purpose, they said, is to put on record by one means or another all candidates for office from constable to president on the league of nations issue. They are determined, they said, to get something about the league written into party platforms, state and national. They want to put partisan organizations everywhere on record, either for or against the league.

Letters are to be written to candidates; speeches are to be delivered to keep the league question constantly before the people and efforts are to be made to elect as many delegates to the national conventions of both parties as can be pledged to work for inclusion of an anti-league plank into the party platform.

Wants Vote of People

"The league of nations issue can never be settled to anybody's satisfaction until it has been voted on by the people at large," said Senator Borah, discussing the organization. "No matter whether the senate ratifies the treaty or not, the league cannot become a verity unless the public sentiment of this country is behind it. The only way to find out whether it is or not, is to make the league the issue in a campaign."

While the "irreconcilables" are thus organizing to force the league into the campaign, both the Democratic and Republican forces in the senate are working equally hard to keep it out. To do this they think that all that is necessary is to ratify the treaty.

So strongly do eighteen Republican senators feel on this point that they have served notice on Senator Lodge, their leader, that unless he brings about a compromise, other senators will treat with the Democrats and perhaps vote with them, to accomplish ratification.

This is the second time within a week that a virtual ultimatum of this sort has been served on Lodge. Behind it are the groups known as the mild reservationists and the middle ground senators.

While these senators blame Lodge for his inaction with respect to a compromise, they also say Senator Hitchcock, acting Democratic leader, wants treaty action delayed until after the Democratic caucus on January 15, when a party leader is to be chosen.

HUSBAND DIED LAST, HEIRS GET FORTUNE

SPOKANE, Dec. 27.—Because J. D. Sherwood lived three hours longer than Mrs. Sherwood after an automobile accident south of San Francisco, November 29, the bulk of Mrs. Sherwood's $700,000 estate will go to heirs of Sherwood instead of to her own heirs, according to attorneys who presented the two wills in the superior court.

After the address at Brooklyn he will begin a speaking tour westward.

Lincoln, Neb., Egg Boycott Again Ordered By Women

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 27.—Off again, on again. Determined to bring down eggs to a "fair" price, Lincoln women have again made the boycott effective.

Three weeks ago eggs were quoted at 85 cents a dozen. Two thousand members of the Lincoln women's club pledged not to buy until the price dropped. Last Monday they were offered as low as 55 cents. Fair enough, said the boycotters, and the ban was lifted. Today eggs are selling at the original figure.

All right, say the women. Beginning today they will refuse to buy until the quotation is what they consider fair—65 cents per dozen for strictly fresh ones.

"Lincoln women will rally behind the fight in a solid body," declared Mrs. N. F. Hildreth, chairman of the committee, "and will hold the line if it takes all summer."

MUCH MYSTERY MARKS SLAYING OF L. A. BROKER

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 27.—Who were the enemies of Albert Norwood, wealthy oil stock broker, recently of Kansas City? That question was what the police tried to answer today. When it is answered, they believe, they can arrest the men who murdered Norwood in front of his home in a fashionable residential section here late yesterday.

But until that question is answered, the case must remain one of the most baffling the local police have ever dealt with.

Christmas night Norwood's apartment and garage were robbed. Jewelry, furs and an automobile, worth a total of $3400, were taken.

Last night he left his house to place another automobile in the garage. Two shots were heard and Mrs. Norwood rushed to the door to see her husband fall dead less than a block from his home.

"Oh Bert, get you," she shouted and since then has been hysterical.

Indications were that two men in an automobile, with possibly some women companions, had killed Norwood after a fight in which Norwood's car, which he was attempting to drive into the garage, had been wrecked.

Four hours later C. A. Burgoon, taxi driver, was ordered to stop by two passengers whom he was driving to a spot near Gardena.

"I had to do this, old man, but I have just killed a man for revenge," one of the mysterious passengers told Burgoon as he robbed him of $28.

Burgoon was left bound and gagged while the two assailants went on afoot.

Police believe Burgoon's assailants killed Norwood.

SISTER OF NEW NOW BELIEVED STAR WITNESS

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 27.—With the defense strongly intimating that Mrs. Lily Burger will not be called to testify in the murder trial of her son, Harry S. New, indications today were that Miss Edna Clancy, New's half sister, will be the star witness for the defense.

Miss Clancy, a short time before Frieda Lesser was shot, had a confidential talk with Miss Lesser. She is expected to testify that what she said to Miss Lesser at that time was the prompting cause for Miss Lesser's death.

Miss Clancy, pretty, dark eyed and winsome, is expected to make a striking picture when she takes the stand to shoulder a part of the burden which the prosecution is trying to pin upon her half-brother.

No session of the trial was held today.

BOY IN REFORMATORY TO EARN HIS LIVING

MANDAN, N. D., Dec. 27.—The North Dakota Training School here is perhaps the only reformatory in the country with a voluntary inmate—a sixteen-year-old boy committed here to do his own living.

A chance to earn an honest living—to specialize in a trade—was what this orphaned boy of Cass county wanted. His only opportunity seemed to be the industrial school of the state reformatory and he sought admittance through the juvenile commissioner. His plea was granted and he was enrolled, the term to expire at any time he wishes.

AFFAIRS OF NEXT WEEK VITAL TO LABOR

Industrial Commission Will Report; Coal Probers, Rail Men to Meet

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—Events that will have a vital bearing on the industrial situation in the United States are scheduled for the last week of 1919—a year of strikes and lockouts.

On the outcome of the events, all of which will get under way Monday, hinge the hopes of government officials that 1920 will prove a year of industrial peace and record production. The events are:

The first report of President Wilson's industrial commission appointed to work out means for preventing trouble between capital and labor will be made public.

The first meeting of the tribunal called to probe the coal situation will be held. This is the commission provided for in the agreement under which the coal strike was ended.

Railroad union heads will meet to outline further action on their demands for increased wages which they wish settled before the roads go back to private ownership on the last Monday of the year.

The industrial commission's report will propose a new set of machinery for preventing strikes and lockouts. While the chief aim of the body has been to bring about a more thorough understanding between capital and labor, its members recognizing that the first step must be to stop troubles which curtail production and cause employers and employees great financial losses and serve only to widen the breach which the commission hopes to close.

"A DAUGHTER OF THE SUN," THE FIRST BIG ROAD SHOW WHICH COMES TO The Temple Theatre Next Monday and Tuesday Nights

In the early seventies Mark Twain made an extensive trip to the Hawaiian Islands and we have the result of his travels in his book "Roughing It." To say that he simply raved over the beauty of these islands, would be putting it mildly. We see references to this enchanted land throughout all his works. This has been more or less the experience of all who have been permitted to travel to these isles.

In 1898 these islands came under the ownership and control of the U. S. A. and since that time the wonders of the Hawaiians have been made better known, for now they have many boat lines that run regularly, also, a cable by which they are in touch with the entire world.

These islands are 2000 miles from San Francisco and an equal distance from any other land, are indeed alone in the broad expanse of the Pacific.

The new play, "A Daughter of the Sun," a story of an Hawaiian Butterfly, written by Lorin Howard and Ralph T. Kettering, and under the management of The Mutual Play Co., is a love tale of these enchanted isles. The story is a clever one and deals with intrigue and adventure, but throughout the whole play there is a most delightful love story. A large band of native Hawaiian musicians is carried and they render music of their own peculiar kind throughout the action of the play. The scenic investiture of the play is a massive one and the cast is larger than many musical shows.

"A Daughter of the Sun" comes to the Temple Theatre next Monday and Tuesday Nights, Dec. 29 and 30. The Company carries a carload of scenery. Reserve seats are now on sale at the Temple Theater box office.

Sennett Big Feature "Down on the Farm" Is Wholesome Comedy of Rural Life

The Sennett feature "Down On the Farm," which will have its premier at the Yost Theatre, December 28, 29 and 30th, is the funniest rural drama ever made. It takes one back to the good old days of melodrama.

Louise Fazenda is the daughter of the stern old farmer, Bert Roach. The mortgage on the old farm is just about due and the banker, James Finlayson, says that he must have his money but that if the father will permit Louise to marry him, the mortgage will be cancelled. Louise detests the banker. What shall she do? In order to escape him, she writes a letter to herself, telling of her broken romance and encloses a picture of a handsome young man, which she has cut out of a collar advertisement. She shows the letter and picture to her father.

The information contained in the letter naturally arouses consternation in the minds of the father and the banker, still demanding his money, goes away and the father hurriedly consents to marrying his daughter to Harry Gribbon, with whom Louise is really in love and who loves Louise. Up to this time the father had frowned on the romance of the young couple because of the fact that Harry was merely a hired man.

The banker learns that Louise has come into a large fortune and immediately becomes widely desirous of marrying Louise. The marriage ceremony starts, but is abruptly interrupted by a riot. Louise tries to escape and runs into her room where she is horror struck to find the original collar man of the advertisement. This leads to a series of tangles in which everybody gets mixed up, including the baby. Finally, with explanations all around, the true lovers are married, the villain routed, and all ends well.

"Down On the Farm" was directed personally by Mr. Sennett.

CHANCE FOR THE REDS

Senator McKellar of Tennessee has a brilliant plan for dealing with current radicalism. He would please conservative folk by banishing the Reds, and at the same time give the latter the chance of their lives to work out their ideas.

His plan is to set aside a large, uninhabited island in the Philippines, and give the Reds free passage to it in government ships, and there lend them every encouragement to install their own social, economic and political system.

When Anarchists, Socialists, Bolsheviks, I. W. W.'s or other Red brands are criticised as visionary and impractical, explains Senator McKellar, they always explain that as society is at present constituted that they do not have a fair chance—they cannot set their world-saving machinery in motion until present institutions are reorganized, and that is a big task.

The senator would make their task easier by giving them the opportunity to start at the bottom and evolve their own order of civilization unhindered. Then, he suggests, when they had got their system to working, its own intrinsic merits would make a way for it, and it would overflow easily and naturally adjoining islands and continents, and so gradually envelop and change the rest of the world.

Now, isn't that a generous and noble proposal? It would take time, of course, and persistent effort. It would be more work than making speeches or throwing bombs. It would mean construction instead of destruction. But all this is what the Reds have always said they really wanted. Here is their chance. What have they got to say about it?

FARM AND FACTORY

The Federation of Labor is engaged in a determined effort to bring the American farmer into its fold. At the Atlantic City convention it appointed a "co-operative committee" to work along this line. Since that time the officers of the Federation have been busily negotiating with representatives of the various granges and other farmer groups.

It is admittedly a difficult undertaking, and the unionists are having trouble accordingly. One or two big farmers' organizations have flatly refused to have anything to do with the Federation. There are obvious differences of character between the two classes concerned. Industrial workers are simply employees, whereas the granges are composed of men who are for the most part their own bosses. The typical farmer is a worker, but he is also a capitalist. He is master and man in one. It is easier to line up the farm hands, and this has been done in some sections; but the line between farm hand and farmer is a vague and shifting one; and, anyway, the Federation wants all the farmers.

There is the further obstacle, too, of rural psychology. Farmers are suspicious of any other class. They do not see any community of interest, either. They produce what the industrial unions consume, and the latter produce what the farmers consume. The farmers regard the city worker as their natural enemy or rival rather than their friend.

The two classes may be left to work out their mutual relations as they see fit. The first thought of an outsider is likely to be that if they were affiliated, it would give organized labor a dangerous increase of power, and work perhaps to the disadvantage of the general public. As a matter of fact, it might benefit both the country workers and the city workers, without hurting anybody else.

The farmers, with their unconquerable conservatism, would be a steady force to control radical action by organized labor. The industrial workers, on the other hand, might, because of their greater alertness in taking up new ideas, have a stimulating effect on the slow-moving farmers. And such affiliation might end in economic co-operation between the food producers and consumers that would benefit everybody.

RADICAL PARTIES

There are five political parties already in the field for next year's presidential campaign. They are the Republican, Democratic, Socialist, Socialist Labor and Labor parties. And the end is not yet.

There was a gathering of self-styled "liberals" in St. Louis recently, to organize a Liberal party. The delegates decided to hold a national convention next summer, and at that convention will very likely nominate a candidate for president. There is also talk of a Prohibition party, devoted to the enforcement of prohibition laws and the perpetuation of the dry regime on which the country enters officially January 16. It may be taken for granted, then, that the voter will have a choice, next November, among at least six national tickets. Out of half a dozen national platforms and presidential candidates there should be found at least one acceptable to every citizen.

It may be noted that four of the half dozen parties already in the field may be called "radical." If the Democratic party, as it stands at present, can be characterized as a sort of middle-of-the-road party, oscillating between radicalism and conservatism, it is evident that the only party conceivably described as "conservative" is the Republican party. This makes an interesting situation, and affords a good chance for a test of national sentiment.

With four parties to divide the radical vote, it is unlikely, of course, that any one of them will receive a big enough vote to scare anybody. All together, however, may roll up a big total. That total will depend very largely on what is done, by public and private agencies, to reduce the cost of living and restore business and industry to a sounder basis during the next eleven months.

Small Contributions

Pasadena Star-News
The Republican National Committee has done well in approving the suggestions of Will H. Hays, national chairman, that individual contributions to the Republican campaign fund be limited to $1000. There are several good reasons why this is preferable to the old way of seeking and accepting large contributions. In the first place, it inspires confidence and respect for the party management on the part of the masses of the people. It is obvious that no corporation and no individual, giving no more than $1000 to the Republican campaign fund, could have any valid claim on the party for special favors. With vast contributions from corporations and magnates of finance and industry, in the past, the people have looked askance, with more or less suspicion, upon such lavish giving.

With contributions limited, the Republican party can appeal to the common people of the country to assist in financing its campaign. It is understood that the total of the campaign fund will be relatively small. This, too, will make a good impression upon the people, removing suspicion of intention to use money improperly to influence voters. The admirable plan of financing that has been agreed upon will make the party's propaganda work distinctively popular, coming from a numerous contingent of the people and appealing strongly to the masses.

Extravagance An Issue

Visalia Delta
The staggering total of the appropriations requested by the administration for the conduct of the government during the next fiscal year makes it very certain that one of the great issues between the Democratic and Republican parties in the campaign of 1920 will be that of Democratic extravagance and Republican economy.

The estimates of the administration amounting to approximately five billion dollars for the maintenance of the government next year demonstrated beyond a doubt that the Democratic party does not intend to change its policy of wild extravagance with public funds. At a time when every effort should be made toward curtailment of public expenditures the administration descends upon congress to demand appropriations which are absolutely staggering, and which are so far beyond what was to be expected if due consideration were given to the circumstances, as to make them absurd. The country, however, can be assured that the senate and house which are controlled by the Republicans, will never consent to a continuation of this mad pace.

The past few years have brought such a change in the country's affairs that the requirements of the government for the next quarter of a century should probably amount to three and one-half billion dollars annually but the country is absolutely unprepared to have requests come in from the administration for appropriations of five billion dollars.

This manifestation of the Democratic failure to recognize the country's serious financial situation makes it doubly assured that the only way will be the watchword of the Republican party, and that will be the great issue upon which we will go before the public in the presidential campaign of next year. Taxes will never be reduced as long as the Democratic party is in power, and public opinion is even now prepared to give the Republicans complete control of all branches of the government at the first opportunity which will be next November.

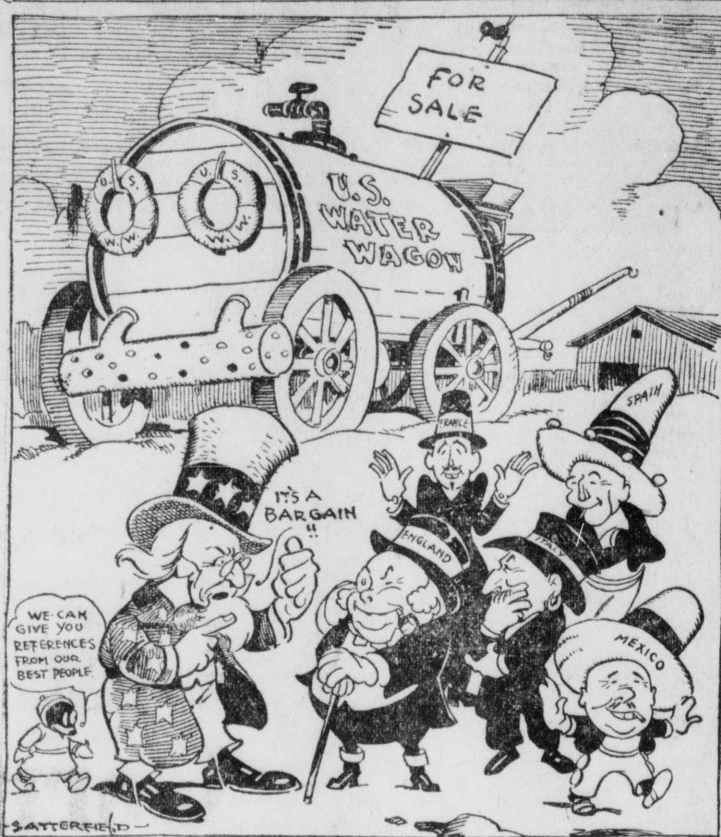

Moral Status

Pasadena Star-News
No great nation today is disposed to brave the moral frowns of the world. Germany's disastrous experience in essaying to ignore the laws of common humanity and to run counter to common standards of international morality has served as a wholesome object lesson. There is no country on earth today that is no first class power—that has the reckless bravado to defy the opinions of mankind and launch upon a course of wanton disregard of the moralities.

There should be a moral status of nations, as distinct and as well-defined as the ethical standing of individuals. Nations should be held to "strict accountability" as individuals, as to the moral quality of their acts. The great war has evolved this principle, which bids far to become incorporated into international law and to become a fixed rule of relations among nations and peoples.

Chorus--"No Can Bid!"

Happy New Year!

(The Register's first New Year greeting comes jointly from the owner and the editor of Laguna Life, and the sentiments expressed are highly appreciated and heartily reciprocated.)

Not wishing to come like mustard after a meal, it is thus early, in a spirit of fraternity, and the impulse of courtesy, that we wish the Register a Happy New Year. The much heralded doing of the Bolsheviks notwithstanding, the country in general, and our part of it in particular, is still inhabited by a majority of human beings who abide by the Ten Commandments of Moses, if not by the Fourteen Points of President Wilson.

"To travel hopefully," said R. L. S., "is better than arriving." Hopefully, then, make your New Year's resolutions; come to the conclusion that the Golden Rule is more than just a pious reflection, and may you act in accordance with the conclusion you forced yourself to adopt.

Man's approach to his ideal is called happiness. And it is at this time, when the mail brings the new calendars, the old bills and the delayed Christmas presents, that we follow the established precedent of wishing our friends success during the coming year in their frantic, or other efforts in approaching their ideals.

As regards happiness in your work—editing an evening daily, for instance,—three things are essential: "You must be fit for it; have a sense of success in it; have not too much of it." In short, in this world of multitudinous and discordant mentalities, may all on your staff be reasonably successful in the attainment of that which, according to the American Constitution, they are entitled to pursue.

FRANK HANSON,
JOE W. SKIDMORE.

DESTINY

Three roses wan as moonlight and weighted down
Each with its loveliness, as with a crown,
Drooped in a florist's window in a town.

The first a lover bought. It lay at rest
Like flower on flower that night on Beauty's breast.

The second rose as virginal and fair
Shrunk in the tangles of a harlot's hair.

The third a widow with new grief made wild
Shut in the icy palm of her dead child.

—Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

THE CHEERFUL CHERUB

Christmas time is almost here—
It fills my heart with glee

MERRY!

For Good Measure

By the Editor

A joke in one of the daily papers the other day, went something like this: "John, I need some new clothes." "Well, Mary, prices are awful high, hadn't you better go in for literature, and pretend you are superior to styles?"

It isn't such a bad joke, and like many another jest it contains its word of truth. Prices are high, and it isn't at all a bad idea to take to literature and cultivate a little superiority to the caprices of fashion. Not that I would advocate saving money at the expense of mother's appearance. Far from so—there is too much of that done all of the time. But, take it by and large, the world has gone a little mad with extravagance and has shown a marked tendency for some years past to indulge in the more expensive pleasures and forget the simpler things which an older generation found delightful even if inexpensive.

Most families today would be better off if the whole family took to literature—not to its composition, but to reading some of that which has already been published, the standard authors of prose and poetry. There is just as much enjoyment in an evening with good books at home as in a movie show. It is going out that costs money, and the world keeps going out because it has so largely forgotten how to be happy at home.

When we come to think of it, why not take to literature and stay at home? It's cheaper than almost anything else, and pleasanter too, once the strangeness wears off.

The following liner ad appeared in a big newspaper the other day exactly as here given except that the name of the machine has been changed:

"Have a lemon in a 4-40 Blank roadster; interesting only to somebody having time to tinker and wait for parts; make an offer; need the money."

The telephone number was given. That was all.

If anything more characteristically American has ever appeared in a paper anywhere it would be strange. And will the frank gentleman who has no time to tinker and who wears of waiting for parts sell his car on that ad? If America is learning the automobile business will be only too glad to buy it to practice on, or some ambitious mechanic with a little cash will take it and joyfully tinker and fuss and eventually make it run like a watch. The principle of "caveat emptor" (let the buyer beware) is vanishing from the land. Co-operation takes the place of competition and exploitation. Moreover, the advertiser has given people a good laugh. Is he not therefore worthy? May his lemon turn to gold!

Luther Burbank, the kindly wizard who improves on Mother Nature's work by developing new and better plants adapted to the needs of the human race, is working now to perfect a superior mulberry tree for a firm of Japanese silk producers.

The new tree is to have a larger leaf of better quality. It is to be of more rapid and compact growth. It will be ready, the great man says, in four years.

Just how this new tree will affect silk production is not stated. It may lead to the production of a better quality of silk goods. Perhaps it will reduce the expense of production, and ultimately the cost to the consumer. Already cotton and woolen goods have risen so much in price that they are being looked upon with greater awe and respect by persons who once considered them common indeed beside luxurious and costly silks. Is the day coming when the housekeeper's morning dress will be of handsome silk while the afternoon frock is of simple calico?

Woman's Faith Is Factor In Keeping Man Out of Prison

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 27.—A woman's faith softened a judge's heart and saved Harold C. Lauritzen, formerly a paying teller at a bank here, from a long prison term.

Lauritzen was given an indeterminate sentence in San Quentin for embezzling $19,000 from the bank which employed him.

Suspending the sentence, Judge Franklin Griffin said:

"When he pleaded guilty I had made up my mind there would be no leniency and no probation in this case. There are too many banks suffering from defalcations by employees. The unwavering faith of a young woman whose name I shall not make public, has made me alter my attitude. This young woman, unlike most women, did not desert this man in his extremity, and still has faith in his ability to make good. If she has faith, then I also shall have faith in him and give him a suspended sentence."

The young woman is reported to be a popular east bay society girl.

The German mark is losing its value, but easy marks are still in great demand.

I still have Casabans on hand; also ice, but wish to call attention to all varieties of wood for stove or fireplace. Coal may be prohibitive, put in wood and be comfortable.

OUR TOY SHOP

The earth is a wonderful shop of toys and God plays Santa Claus;
The lions of velvet behind the bars
Can yawn and lick their paws
The monkeys and bears have truly fur,
They climb and scratch and bite.
The cannon are belching fire and shot,
Toy soldiers bleed for Right.
Our Toyland express puffs out black smoke
Then far away it whirrs.
The dollies are made of flesh and blood with brown or golden curls.
Then there is the grab bag bulging out
With wondrous shapely bumps.
Great bundles of luck and plenty of health
And gold and silver lumps;
Some talents, some wit and Faith and Love.
The scent that daytime brings,
The colors of sunset, the crest of waves,
All kinds of lovely things!
As Santa Claus never paused to ask
If we deserved the toys,
So God never questions; to good and bad
He gives His wealth of joys.

Jolly Dinner Given

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Winter entertained the following at Christmas dinner: Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Gordon, who just arrived from the east, awaiting them. Mrs. Winter and Mrs. Gordon are sisters. A hour later, Mrs. Winter's brother, George Habernicht, also came. Mrs. Winter was expecting Mrs. Gordon some time soon but did not know her brother was coming at all. The new arrivals all like California, especially Santa Ana.

Cathart-Thompson Nuptials.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Cathart, 601 West Sixth St., a beautiful wedding took place on Christmas night, when their daughter, Miss Nell B. Cathart, was united in marriage to Bula J. Thompson. The home presented a very charming appearance with its bowers of greenery.

In the parlor a large bridal arch was erected of asparagus plumosities, dotted with white carnations and, from the center of the arch, was suspended a large wedding bell made of white carnations and smiling.

At eight o'clock Miss Helen Jamison sweetly sang, "One Sweet Day," accompanied by Mrs. G. N. Greer, after which the bride party, approaching to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, took their places beneath the arch where Rev. G. N. Greer, pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian church, of which the bride has long been a member, performed the ceremony.

The bride couple was attended by Miss Mary McCarter, beautifully gowned in pink chiffon taffeta, carrying pink carnations, and Mr. Richardson in uniform. Little Fern Woodside, niece of the bride was ring bearer and carried the ring in a calla lily. The bride's father gave her into the groom's keeping.

The bride was very daintily gowned in white charmeuse and escorted with silver lace trimmings. Orange blossoms held the bridal veil in place and she carried a bouquet of white carnations.

The bride is a popular Santa Ana girl and has been in the employ of the Ben E. Turner Insurance agency as book-keeper and stenographer for several years. She has been an active worker in the Reformed Presbyterian church.

The groom, who was in uniform, is a sterling young soldier in the employ of Uncle Sam, and, since returning from overseas, has been stationed at Fort Bliss, Texas.

Delicious refreshments were served to about sixty relatives of the bride and groom, after which Corporal and Mrs. Thompson left for El Paso, followed by the congratulations and best wishes of their many friends.

They will make their home in El Paso until the groom gets his discharge in June, after which they expect to return to Santa Ana to live. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts of silver, cut glass and linen.

Son Here for Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin H. Shields were happy this Christmas day, the arrival of their son, Cecil, of the U. S. Navy, for the first time since June, 1917. He is now stationed on the ship, "R. L. Dwight Dwyer, shipmate of Cecil Shields and Gregory Crutcher, recently discharged from the navy, also enjoyed a turkey dinner Christmas day at the Shields home.

Cecil Shields and Dwight Dwyer will return to San Diego after their five-day furlough is up.

Mrs. Norton Entertains.
Mrs. John W. Norton, 301 West First street, entertained the following dinner guests: Christmas day: Mrs. L. M. Hammon of Los Angeles and her house-guests Mr. and Mrs. Ira T. Mann and daughter, Miss Luella Mann, of Detroit, Michigan, who are spending the winter in California.

Guests of J. A. Wilkes.
Dr. and Mrs. Alfred L. Wilkes and son, Houston, Mrs. Sheats and Miss Josephine Wilkes of Los Angeles, Gus Grundt and daughter Alice, of Wasco, are guests of the J. A. Wilkes family for the holidays.

The two long dining tables were centered with baskets of beautiful holly berries. Two large turkeys and all the good things that accompany them graced the tables. Red, the color scheme, was successfully carried out in the napkins, place cards, after-dinner mints, etc.

The Corps President, Harriet Coluter, and Commander Maryatt each spoke on the work of their respective organizations. Chaplain Grigsby told of visiting a sick comrade and his pathetic condition, and announced the death of two others.

The business session of the Club closed the meeting. The next meeting will be on the 29th of January, when officers will be elected.

New Baby Attraction.

The new baby in the Winbiger family circle was the sweet little center of attraction at the Christmas celebration on Thursday, when fifteen were present. The babe had the distinction of being surrounded by her great-grandfather and great-grandmother, grandfather and grandmother, three great aunts and one great-great aunt. As she is but three weeks old, all this loving adulation did not spoil her.

The out-of-town relatives present were Mrs. Hiram M. Calk and Mrs. Lillian M. Vaughn, of Los Angeles.

Canadians Have Dinner.

One of the merriest of Christmas parties was held at the home of Mrs. M. A. Reaney, 618 South Broadway, where a number of Canadian relatives and friends gathered for a Christmas tree frolic.

The house was profusely decorated with Christmas wreaths, festoons, etc., the sprigs of mistletoe over the doors and hanging from chandeliers causing much merriment.

The tree was beautiful in its Christmas trappings and brought abundant fruitage in the way of gifts and jokes for all.

The Canadian flag occupied a very prominent place at the party as most of those present are from Canada.

Delicious refreshments were served and the party did not "break up" until a late hour.

One of the pleasures of the evening was the surprise to the guests when Mrs. Reaney and Miss Daisy Palmer arrived unexpectedly from Canada.

Members of the party were: Mrs. Mary Bradley, Mrs. S. L. Dawes, Misses Anna Reaney, Daisy Palmer, Dorothy Kennedy, Rhoda Jickling, Rosalind Dawes, Margaret McNally, Gladys and Alvin McKim, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McKim, and Mrs. A. A. FIELDING LEAD HELD BY SOX OF BOSTON

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—Boston's Red Sox topped the American League baseball clubs in fielding for the 1919 season, official fielding records made public today showed. Boston's percentage was .975.

There were only nineteen points difference in the percentages of Boston and Philadelphia, who were tail-enders in fielding.

The Chicago White Sox gained second place, six points behind the leaders. New York was tied for the heels of the windy city boys with one point less than Chicago, or .968.

The rest in order follow: Cleveland, .965; Detroit, .964; St. Louis, .963; Washington, .960, and Philadelphia, .956.

Gandil, White Sox first-sacker, with only three errors charged against him in 115 games, heads the first basemen of the league in fielding. Stuffy McInnis of Boston is next with a percentage of .995. With .991, three others are tied for third place—Pipp, New York; Sisler, St. Louis, and Rishberg, Chicago.

Of the second basemen who participated in more than 100 games, Gedeon of St. Louis leads the list, with a percentage of .975. E. Collins, Chicago, is a close second, with .974.

Vitt of Boston cops the coveted place as best fielding third-baseman of those in the league who took part in more than 100 games. His record is .967.

Scott of the Red Sox easily grabbed the honors in the shortstop column, with a percentage of .976 for 138 games.

Babe Ruth, of home-run fame, out-classed the outfielders and emerged with a percentage of .992 for 111 games. Only two errors were marked against him as an outfielder. Lewis of the Yankees played in thirty more games and was accredited with .985. Here are some others in the order they finished: Speaker, Cleveland, .983; Hooper, Boston, .979; Cobb, Detroit, .973; Welsch, Chicago, .968.

Backstops of a hundred games or more are led by Severid, St. Louis, with .983. Schalk, Chicago, and Schang, Boston, follow with .981 and .972, respectively.

Eight twirlers finished the season with perfect fielding records. Each hurled in more than fifteen games. They are Wright, St. Louis; Wellman, St. Louis; Shore, New York; Leifield, St. Louis; Zachary, Washington; McGraw, New York-Boston; Thompson, Washington-Philadelphia, and Danforth, Chicago. Walter Johnson of the Senators was right behind the .1000 boys. With one error he got a percentage of .988. Pitching in seventeen games, Ruth, Boston, made one error and ended the season with .970.

U. S. Middleweight Champ Seeking Carpenter Fight

Many Believe American Can Win From Frenchman; Near Same Weight

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Mike O'Dowd, middleweight champion of the United States is after a match with Georges Carpentier, the French heavyweight title holder.

O'Dowd is a clever boxer with a terrific punch, and there are many followers of the game who believe he could win from the French marvel. However, there is little chance of O'Dowd getting the match now that Carpentier is after Dempsey and the big money. If the Dempsey-Carpentier match should fall through or if Carpentier is defeated, then O'Dowd may have a chance at the Frenchman.

Carpentier fights at 170 pounds and O'Dowd will weigh about 160 when in battling trim.

WHIRLWIND IS BEING REAPED IN GERMANY

By CARL D. GROOT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
BERLIN, Dec. 26.—Germany is reaping the whirlwind.

Reaping it in shattered morale and deadened morals. A once strong, industrious nation, it has slumped, through war, to a land that one scarcely recognizes as the near world-matter of the early days of the struggle.

This degeneration is pictured tellingly by Erhard Breitner, a correspondent of the Neue Berliner, in the following story:

"1914—It is the carefree early summer, the last of the old time. Infatigably beautiful June days. The city is flooded with brightness and splendor. Life foams over. In the mild evening, the autos hum over the Kurstendamm in an uninterrupted chain toward the Lichter-park. Foolishly happy confusion, music, champagne, laughter, love-making in hidden garden paths. Who thinks of care? One thinks, What generation of Germans is this? Are they really the descendants of the men of 1870? In pleasure seeking enervated, spoiled, cosmopolitan with comfort, thoroughly cynical—so are they all. Thank God that there will be no more war! The others remain silent for no one knows what reply to make."

Berlin Half Dead
"1917—Berlin is half dead. Through the streets creep human beings, too tired to complain. Sorrow and need oppress them; scarcely any hope now gleams on the horizon. Turnings and soggy bread are their food. The ovens have no heat. Clothing and shoes are unobtainable. One drags himself about day in and day out, week in and week out, month in and month out. But they do it with supernatural patience, with teeth set. Are they the same? Have the years changed them? Purified through sacrifice, they have cleaner hearts. Blood and belongings lost, but they have come out of the mire of the past. Not in vain do they die out yonder."

"1919—Through the entire city there is a sewer odor. Existence vibrates between the dance-bar and the gambling club. Bank notes fly; one drinks bad champagne, and carouses at fabulous prices. Obscene films flicker before an overfilled parterre. Full pocketbooks—nobody asks after the future. One doesn't need to know. Card winnings; amusements on the edge of the law; smugglers' tricks. Beggars with the black, white-red ribbons in their button-holes make music at the street corners. Murder, burglary, housebreak, every day and without number. Smouldering ferment below; hate and anxiety above, lurking mistrust everywhere. Yesterday is forgotten. Nobody cares what comes tomorrow. The Flood? Perhaps. Only faint, remote counts. Are still brothers as before? Now each is nearest to himself. So it is, this sultry summer, the first of the new era."

Report Is Published
Finis—The Copenhagen society for study of the social results of the war has just published its report on Germany. 9 volume full of figures. About 5,600,000 have been lost—1,800,000 in the field; 2,100,000 through increased mortality; 3,500,000 through decimation of the birth rate. There are 2,700,000 more women than men in Germany—condemned to go unwedded. That is the final reckoning of our misery * * * If we could unite the dead, they would make a city of graves through which one could not wander in many days.

"For what have they died? Shot, torn by grenades, frozen, starved, perishing in torture. Why? What are the thanks of the living? If the spectral army of the dead could turn home again and ask 'why have we died,' who would dare to answer? "Those who have taken upon themselves the 'responsibility' for the war follow the hunt, play tennis, sit in villas and castles, write recollections. What is that—the 'responsibility'! Nothing—a phrase behind which, as behind an impenetrable shield, ministers of power hides itself. This sham has outlived the death of masses; it is hereditary and no one crushes it."

METZGAR WILL SPEND WEEK IN PASADENA
Secretary J. C. Metzgar of the Chamber of Commerce will be absent from his office from Monday to Friday of next week. He is going to attend the convention of commercial secretaries to be held in Pasadena December 29-January 2, and will be pretty much occupied in that city, with the regular sessions of the convention and the program of entertainment provided.

RIVERSIDE EXPECTING GOOD ORANGE SEASON

Riverside Enterprise: Continued moderate weather throughout the Riverside orange belt for the next ten days will assure citrus fruit growers a very successful season, according to A. L. Woodill of the California Mutual Packing company and H. A. Lynn, secretary and manager of the Arlington Heights Fruit Exchange. Both Mr. Woodill and Mr. Lynn agree that if weather conditions remain normal over the next ten or fifteen days, all will be well with the orange crop.

"In past years as records will show," said Woodill, "frostings have come just about the holiday season. We are hopeful of avoiding such a condition this year as the market at home and in the east is very favorable."

"Reports that the crop has been damaged by wind and severe cold are not true in so far as the Riverside district is concerned."

THINKS BANDIT WOULD MAKE PREACHER

CHICAGO, Dec. 27—Present day crooks are all pikers. That is the opinion of "Lucky" Baldwin, one time horse thief, train robber, pickpocket and at present "among those who have come back."

"Fearless crooks? Why, you don't read of one in a year," Lucky told the United Press. "The only one I have read about in months is 'Bill' Carlisle."

"And then they had to stop him," he added with a tone of regret in his voice. "I would like to get a hold of Carlisle. He would make a wonderful preacher. He wouldn't be afraid to preach the Gospel."

Baldwin, whose right name is C. J. Balfie, but who is known to inmates of the Chicago workhouse, where he has been chaplain for seven years, as "Lucky," knows crooks from A to Z. He was one himself for twenty-five years, but was converted at the McAuley Mission in New York City in 1908.

For the last eleven years he has been one of the most successful mission workers in Chicago, due to his knowledge of the underworld and its people.

"Fifty per cent of the inmates of the prisons of the United States should never be put behind the bars," he declared. "The other fifty per cent should never get out."

"Take the 'dips. They wait until some poor little girl starts to get on a car—and then they grab her purse with a few nickels and run. 'The day I was converted, I started to lift the oil of a guy in the Bowery in New York. Only silver fell from his pockets. Do you think I would pick it up? Not Lucky Baldwin."

Nine men who Baldwin picked up from the streets are now preaching the Gospel. He speaks of them with pride, and a smile which shows the row of teeth, replacing those knocked off by the butt end of an Arizona sheriff's gun, lights his face.

3 PEDESTRIANS ARE STRUCK BY AUTOIST

Suffering from a slight concussion of the brain and from abrasions on his limbs, W. J. Massecar, of La Habra, an employee of the Standard Oil Company, was at the Fullerton hospital today, following an accident on the highway between La Habra and Fullerton. Massecar and five others were walking on the highway when a machine said to have been driven by a man named Brewster, also of La Habra, ran into them. Others in the party were E. R. Hauger and E. L. MacAllister, the latter a marine, visiting at La Habra on a furlough. MacAllister was taken to the Fullerton hospital suffering from injuries similar to those sustained by Massecar. He left the hospital for his home late yesterday afternoon. Hauger was slightly injured. Massecar will be able to leave the hospital in a few days, it was stated today.

Queen Ena of Spain Walks About London Displaying Clothes

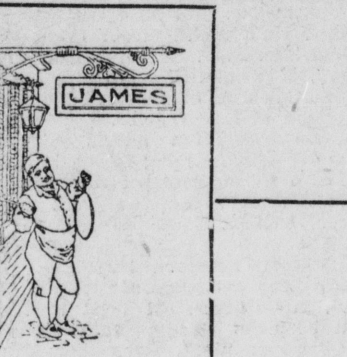

LONDON, Dec. 26—The present fashion, which decrees that women shall cover their faces with hats, wraps and furs almost after the manner of yashmak, was very useful to Queen "Ena" of Spain to preserve her incognito during her visit here recently. She was to be seen any morning taking a constitutional in the Row and then she drove to Bond Street, where she promenaded with the rest of the smart set, very often being unrecognized, even by those who ought to know her appearance well.

It is said that she is very proud of her reputation as "the best dressed Queen in Europe," and she certainly devotes a large part of her time and energies in sustaining it. Her coming sensibly increased the enormous harvest being reaped by that one big fur shop alone benefited by her visit to the extent of nearly $100,000. She was always seen in magnificent furs in the very newest style, which she showed off to high advantage.

Queen Victoria has a fine figure, and since she has grown thinner, it shows to better effect. She walks gracefully and wears her skirts not extravagantly short, but just short enough to display pretty feet, finely turned ankles and a foot or so of very shapely leg. It can no longer be less majestic to talk of the royal leg seeing that it was exposed like and common for public admiration.

Mary Jean Wright, baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Wright, who has been quite ill, is improving nicely.

TOMORROW'S SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

PRACTICAL NOTES PREPARED FOR THE REGISTER

By Cal. Ogburn

Lesson for Dec. 28.—Review.

The lessons of the last quarter have been, mainly, about the making over of two men. They were Peter and John. Of course they didn't think they needed much if any "fixing," and perhaps each of them could have proved it by his mother. For were they not "good boys"—at least as good or better than the average? Their mothers thought so. Were they not religious, industrious and ambitious? Re-make them? Preposterous! Maybe Peter's mother didn't know that he sometimes "swore like a sailor," or, if she did, excused the matter on the ground of great provocation and a hasty temper. Mothers have such a wonderful way of seeing the good and failing to see the bad. God bless them! Their very goodness ought to break the heart of any boy, who is not all that his mother believes him to be.

And John. If he wanted to call down fire from heaven and consume a few score inhospitable Samaritans—well, he only expressed the dislike of the average Jew for these unorthodox people. Surely he didn't need to be "made over" for that! Yes, these and other inconsistencies and sins in the lives of Peter and John showed plainly that they did need making over. We speak of such need now as that of "reformation." No, not quite that either. For we think of a "reformed man" as one who "went the limit." However, it should apply to just such men as were Peter and John.

There is but one standard of excellence. That Christ established. And all men whose lives do not conform to this standard should be made over. This is not easy to do, as Christ's efforts at reforming these two disciples show. We sometimes say of a stubborn, willful child that "It has a will of its own." Peter and John not only each had a will of his own, but, just like all men needing to be made over, each of them had a "won't" of his own. Jesus had a great plan for both of these men—as indeed he has for all men—for he had said to them, "Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men." But this "following," according to their attitude, must be as pleased them, and not as Jesus wished. And that is still the great difficulty. If John could hate the Samaritans and yet be a follower of Jesus, or sit on the right hand of Christ in his kingdom—if he could be as selfish as Satan—then following this Nazarene Teacher would meet with his utmost approval. And if Simon Peter could deny his Lord, when it might work a hardship to acknowledge him, then he, too, would find certain pleasure in regarding himself as "one of this Man's disciples." It would eliminate the making over process, which invariably calls for heroic self denial. The fact is that every man, whose character is not what Christ approves, needs to be made over. If his religion is not of the best; if his habits are bad; if his ideals low; his tolerance for others wanting; his steadfastness wavering—if, according to the standard of Christ, one or many things in his life needs correcting, then, to that extent, the man should be made over. He may not be either better or worse than Peter or John, but nevertheless he needs reforming. And that is just the trouble. Every man who regards himself as "a pretty decent sort of fellow, after all," will not acknowledge that he should have a better religion, or live a more excellent life. "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature." And that means every man whose life conforms to the will of Christ is thereby so radically changed that he has really become a new man. Did John, the old saint of Patmos, think then that he needed making over, when Jesus called him a son of thunder? And did Peter, preaching marvelously on the day of Pentecost, think that he had ever needed reforming? Put your case into the hands of the Christ and, working with him, he will make you over and into a man of great service and usefulness—just as he did Peter and John.

Two lots at the southwest corner of Twelfth and Bush streets have been sold by Fred Rafferty to Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Visel, possession to be given on March 1.

It is understood that eventually Mr. and Mrs. Visel will build a bungalow residence upon the property, which lies 100 feet on Twelfth and 125 feet on Bush.

These lots are now covered by a lath house, a part of the Rafferty gardens. Two lots at the southeast corner of Twelfth and Bush streets are also occupied by lath houses, and later Rafferty will clear or sell these lots.

"BE SURE YOUR SINS WILL FIND YOU OUT"—That is a great truth which every man and woman of mature age has learned from experience. No law which has been laid down by God or Nature can be disregarded without serious consequences. Nature says that if you do not eat you'll starve. You know it's true. God says: "Feed your soul." And if you don't do it your soul will starve. How feed the soul? Go to church tomorrow and you'll find what your soul requires. Go regularly, that's what your soul needs. Maybe you don't quite understand now but after you've tried it awhile you'll know. Go to church tomorrow.

'DOWN ON THE FARM' SENNETT'S FUNNIEST

Those who have attended a preview of the scenes which have been taken to date of the new Sennett production, "Down on the Farm," which is to be shown at the Yost Theater, December 28, 29 and 30, declare it is the funniest picture Sennett has ever made.

The famous Sennett animals, Pepper, Teddy, and the cows and geese and pigs of the Sennett farm, play prominent parts in this human-interest picture.

The production is five reels in length and all the favorite Sennett comedians appear in the cast. Don Marion, the famous child actor of the Sennett studio, also plays a prominent part.

Mack Sennett and his entire company will be at the Yost Theater for the first showing of the film, and Manager Yost declares this will be the biggest show ever given in Santa Ana. Its first showing will be at the Sunday matinee and it will be shown Sunday, Monday and Tuesday evenings at 7 and 9 o'clock. There will be a special matinee Tuesday.

Everyone will want to see Ben Turpin.

The prologue will be furnished by the Pantages circuit.

150,000 GIVEN TREATMENT IN HOSPITAL

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 27.—During its existence, the Children's hospital of San Francisco has rendered service to more than 150,000 sick persons, over 1,000,000 sick days, about two days for each man, woman and child in the city.

This and other facts concerning the institution were made public in an appeal for donations. Commenting on the year's work, the statement says:

By the end of December the hospital will have spent over $272,000 for care of the sick and in upkeep of the plant.

Of this money, $40,000 was given by the public. The remainder represents interest on endowments, donations and income from patients.

The sum of $39,322 was spent to furnish free or part-pay treatment for patients, most of whom were children.

Of 57,866 hospital days, over 15,687, or about 36 per cent, paid nothing or less than cost.

More than 1600 different persons received care in the hospital and nearly 2600 in other services, free or at less than cost.

The average daily number of free beds and less-than-cost was 43.

Nearly 2,000 persons responded to request for funds last year, and contributed $40,000.

Outlining the plans for next year, the board of managers announced they expect to have 75,000 patient days.

Harvard Team Rested After Long Journey Takes Workout Today

PASADENA, Dec. 27.—Twenty-four Harvard athletes, here to meet the husky Oregon team on New Year's day, awoke this morning somewhat rested following their eventful day yesterday when they ended their 3,000-mile jaunt and worked out at Tournament Park.

Coast football critics admit that Harvard has a first-class team and claim the aggregation is superior to Pennsylvania, which was defeated by Oregon in 1917. The northerners are not regarded as strong as the team which defeated the Quakers, but they are in excellent condition, which will be a big factor in the coming game.

Both teams worked out this morning on separate fields and secret practice rules were enforced. Each team carried its own particular grade of drinking water.

According to Coach Fisher, Harvard will not deviate from its tactics used against Yale, Princeton and other eastern teams, in the game here, while Oregon has adopted several effective line plays that created havoc on the coast.

Early betting favors Oregon. The odds were ten to seven, with few takers.

COURTHOUSE NEWS

DOG, HENS FIGURE IN TRIAL EVIDENCE

Justice of the Peace John B. Cox concluded that George Schuppert of Brea was just a little too violent in his language during a dispute he had with Mrs. Ella S. Kellogg, also of Brea, relative to a dog and some chickens, and today Schuppert was 16 poorer in pocket, Justice Cox having fined him that amount. Schuppert owned the dog in question while Mrs. Kellogg was the owner of the chickens, it was brought out at Schuppert's trial on a charge of disturbing the peace. The dog made sundry visits into Mrs. Kellogg's poultry yard, witnesses said. Then, it was related, when Schuppert's dog was being "steered" off with a whip in the hands of Mrs. Kellogg, Schuppert went to the aid of his pet. A dispute followed, and the tone of Schuppert's voice was unnecessarily loud, so Justice Cox held, after the evidence was taken, and the fine followed.

Both the defendant and the complaining witnesses testified. C. R. Allen and Mrs. L. A. Long gave testimony on behalf of the state, while Ed Schuppert testified for the defendant. Deputy District Attorney A. P. Nelson prosecuted.

The complaint against Palmer was sworn to by Steele Finley. It was alleged that on April 1, 1917, Palmer was entrusted with a 25 horse power motor, said to be worth $450, and that Palmer embezzled it on November 15, 1918.

TELLS MENUS SERVED COUNTY PRISONERS

Hash, mush and milk, half of a five-cent loaf of bread, and coffee constitute the menu that is served at the county jail at breakfast each morning at a cost of 18 cents per meal, according to Deputy Sheriff Theo. Lacy, Jr., jailer, today. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon dinner is served, consisting of stew or beans, a half of a five-cent loaf of bread, and coffee. Trustees, however, do not have to wait until 4 o'clock, as they are fed at noon. They are given the extra meal as compensation for work they do about the jail. On two or three mornings a week "weenies" take the place of hash. Spanish rice is served several times a week, in place of hash. The stew that is served at the jail is not a weak concoction, but a nutritious dish cooked with vegetables and with rice or macaroni. The county formerly was able to serve the prisoners at a cost of 14 cents per meal. Several weeks ago the rate was raised to 18 cents, owing to the increase in the cost of materials.

Cheery Robins Are Again Visitors In This Section

Brown-breasted robins are here!

They are not very regular in their visits to this section. Some winters go by, and nary a robin will be seen. Another year they are here in quantities.

Just what governs their migrations is not known. Why they should reach Santa Ana some years and other years not get this far south bay be known to bird scientists, but to the ordinary bird man who loves the active robin, his comings and goings are a mystery. Possibly instinct told the robins that there was to be a hard winter further north, and, like the eastern tourist, they turned their eyes toward sunny Southern California.

Whatever the why and wherefore, the fact remains that they are here, and they are welcome. Perhaps not so welcome as the flowers in May and the showers in April, but nevertheless very, very welcome.

Manual 'Phones Sunset Magazine

The work of a telephone operator is extremely exacting. It requires alertness, a cool head and concentrated attention. On a busy exchange the average girl can not work for many years before she needs a change of occupation. And the pay is not high considering the heavy cost of necessities.

The telephone operators of the Pacific coast struck some months ago. Their full demands for higher wages were not granted. To have granted them would have meant a heavy increase in rates, and the temper of the public just now is against drastic rate increases.

Since the operators went back to work dissatisfied, they being human, have been full of resentment, and they have expressed this resentment by sabotaging the service. All along the Pacific coast the telephone service has been no better than that given by the state-owned systems of Europe, and in Europe a letter is almost as speedy as the telephone.

Of course it is easy to understand the motives and tactics of the high-strung girls at the switchboards, but unfortunately these tactics won't get them anything. In Seattle where the service has been worst, preparations are under way to install an automatic system operated without human assistance, and plans for similar switchboards are being prepared for other coast points.

It will be better all around to have automatic systems even though most people prefer human response. If the public is unwilling to pay high enough for manual service to satisfy the operators, the only way to do away with constant annoyance is to eliminate the operator altogether.

Tustin News

TUSTIN, Dec. 27.—Christmas day was a time of general rejoicing in Tustin, all in family groups. Almost everyone was a member of a family party gathered at a hospitable home for Christmas dinner.

At the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Stevens there were twenty-one relatives enjoying a turkey dinner with all the delicious accessories. The holly and mistletoe were notably attractive and each of the guests joyfully carried some away on their departure. The party comprised Dr. and Mrs. McMurry and daughter, Miss Ruth McMurry of San Francisco, Dr. and Mrs. Ben Grace and son of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Will Snow and family of Santa Ana, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robinson, Santa Ana, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Patton of Orange, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Stevens and son, and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Stevens.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Beswick, in their handsome new home, are entertaining a house party of relatives during the Christmas season. Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Towler of Huganess and Mr. and Mrs. E. Moorehead of Modesto motored down last Sunday. Mrs. Towler and Mrs. Moorehead are sister and niece of Mrs. Beswick. On Christmas evening (other members of the family joined the party to enjoy a beautiful Christmas tree and its fruits as well as a fine Christmas dinner. They were Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wertz of Whittier, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Wertz of Pasadena, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wertz of Harper and Miss Belle Wolfard of Portland, Oregon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowman hospitably entertained at a family gathering in the Leck house on Christmas day at the noon hour. The delicious turkey dinner was enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. Lauren Holland and daughter, Mabel of Los Angeles, Mrs. Geo. Ashman, Oakland, Miss Ida Wells, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Bowman and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Will Bowman and children, host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowman, Frances and Clarence Bowman.

An all-day house party was immensely enjoyed Christmas day at the first street home of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Suddaby. The invited guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Saners of Akron, Ohio, and Miss Nellie Vale, Gradenerville, Nevada, who is an old schoolmate of Mr. Suddaby. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Saners and son Theron, Mrs. Uehling, Mr. and Mrs. John Saners, John Vernon Saners and Miss Laurene Saners, and Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Suddaby. The reunion of the Kiser family was an enjoyable one at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Kiser. The guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Bose, of Oxford, Nebraska. Mrs. Bose is daughter of Mrs. L. B. Kiser. Twenty-three sat down to a Christmas dinner together and a very happy time was enjoyed. A family gathering at the home of Mrs. C. Squires around the dinner table was another one of these joyful affairs and the base of the good things was two fine turkeys. The guests were Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Grant, Clifford Grant, Miss Grace and Edith Ball of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Coutts, Gertrude and Harold Coutts of Pasadena.

Will Squires of Modesto, former Tustin resident, was also a guest and is spending the Christmas week looking over old haunts of twelve years ago when he bucked hay on Heroes Hill. He has observed many changes.

The opening of all Christmas presents had been reserved till the afternoon and they filled two clothes baskets.

The same party is invited to spend New Year's day with Mrs. Coutts at Pasadena and will attend the Tournament of Roses.

One of the enjoyable Tustin dinner parties on Christmas day was that at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Preble. The house guests were Mrs. A. E. Chamberlain of Santa Rosa and Miss Bessie Hocker of San Francisco. Besides the family there were Miss Nina Eells and brother Ralph Eells, Dr. J. A. Linkenfelder, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Young, Mr. and Mrs. Forest Collin and daughter Beth, Mrs. Clara Young, Mrs. Badie Bladen and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Young of Anaheim.

Mrs. Edna Slusser has been visiting in Los Angeles since the close of the Teachers' Institute.

The Pasadena Star-News says Henry Ford's new gasoline driven street car is to be tried on the streets there, in an effort to solve the problem of more rapid transit. According to the enthusiastic advocates of Henry's new street boat, its principal advantage is great speed. It can run so fast, it is claimed, that it can even keep ahead of the increasing cost of maintenance. Another of its advantages is that when it hits an auto or a pedestrian, there is no lingering doubt as to the result. Everything in the line of accidents is definite and final. In these days of crowded streets and feverish haste we can hardly see how the speedier street cars would scheme of things, but since we don't live in Pasadena, we see no reason why it shouldn't be tried there if the people want it.

Twenty years ago, says the Norwalk Call, the United States was being twitted about its inability to surround and capture Aguinaldo, over in the Philippines. To prove that history repeats itself, look at that cocky little Villa pestering himself around down in Mexico. But give Uncle Same time to get good and mad. A fellow has to get that way before he will take time to stop and swat a pup barking at his heels.

PREPARE YOUNG MEN FOR RAILROAD WORK

Sixty railroad scholarships a year will be awarded by the Southern Pacific according to a plan announced by the railroad. Appointments will be made by division superintendents and the heads of the various departments of the railroad, who are charged with the responsibility of not alone securing appointees, but watching their progress carefully and placing them upon graduation. Business men in the various towns along the lines of the Southern Pacific will be asked to recommend men between the ages of 18 and 23 who will be sent to the agency school in San Francisco and there prepared for positions in the freight and passenger departments and the general offices. They will be paid a nominal sum while being instructed.

Superintendent of Telegraph E. L. King, who has general charge of the scholarships, calls attention to the fact that most of the railroad presidents of today began in positions such as the students will qualify for. J. J. Miller, of San Francisco, will be the instructor.

SAYS GOPHERS KILL CROP EATING PESTS

BISMARCK, N. D., Dec. 27.—That the fight for the extermination of gophers has been a mistake, was the contention of one North Dakota legislator who vainly tried to put through a law forbidding the poisoning of gophers, which, he said, helped destroy the grasshoppers that were a menace last year in some parts of the state and are expected to be a greater evil next year.

GILMAKERS HAVE NOT SOLD 4TH, BROADWAY

There is no foundation for a rumor in circulation here this week that the Bank of Italy had purchased sixty feet on the corner of Broadway and Fourth from the Gilmaker estate, according to the statement of men interested on both sides.

The assistant cashier of the Bank of Italy in Los Angeles denied knowledge of such a transaction, and the Register today is in receipt of a telegram from Jos. Gilmaker in San Francisco stating that he knows nothing of such a deal. The telegram was in reply to a telegraphic query by the Register.

The railways of the United States are more than one-third, nearly one-half, of all the railways of the world. They carry a yearly traffic so much greater than that of any other country that there is really no basis for comparison. Indeed, the traffic of any two nations may be combined, and still it does not approach the commerce of America borne upon American railways.

—United States Senator Cummins.

Ask Any Doughboy Who Was "Over There" and he will tell you that American railroads are the best in the world.

He saw the foreign roads—in England and France, the best in Europe—and in other Continental countries—and he knows.

The part railroads have played in the development of the United States is beyond measure.

American railroads have achieved high standards of public service by far-sighted and courageous investment of capital, and by the constant striving of managers and men for rewards for work well done.

We have the best railroads in the world—we must continue to have the best.

But they must grow.

To the $20,000,000,000 now invested in our railroads, there will have to be added in the next few years, to keep pace with the nation's business, billions more for additional tracks, stations and terminals, cars and engines, electric power houses and trains, automatic signals, safety devices, the elimination of grade crossings—and for reconstruction and engineering economies that will reduce the cost of transportation.

To attract to the railroads in the future the investment funds of many thrifty citizens, the directing genius of the most capable builders and managers, and the skill and loyalty of the best workmen—in competition with other industries bidding for capital, managers and men—the railroad industry must hold out fair rewards to capital, to managers and to the men.

American railroads will continue to set world standards and adequately serve the Nation's needs if they continue to be built and operated on the American principle of rewards for work well done.

GAS PRICE WILL BUMP UPWARD SOON, SAYS REPORT

Greater Demand Than Production Assigned As Cause For Impending Raise

Gasoline is due for another bump upwards, according to a story going the rounds of the newspapers of the state. Whether it is propaganda by the oil companies or whether it is a story developed by a newspaper reporter with foundation, the Register does not know, and is passing the word along for what it is worth.

Gasoline, perhaps, is the only commodity in general use today that has not advanced in price corresponding with everything else that has gone up from 100 to 300 per cent since the high cost of living started. The producers have raised the price three or four times, but the retailers never have shared in any of the advances and they today are operating on a margin of 2 cents per gallon, in some instances, and one cent in others, and this despite the fact that their operating costs have advanced all along the line. This is the same profit basis they were working on long before the war.

Lubricating oils have advanced also to the retailer without a proportionate increase by the retailer to the consumer, with the result that the retailers of gasoline and oils are working on less margins than before the war. They have been made the goats, in a sense, according to a local retailer.

The proposed increase in the cost of motor fuel is said to be due to the increased demand, the demand being greater than the production, and the former is increasing in ratio all the time. It is alleged that one of the largest oil companies in the state is not seeking any new business for the reason that this big company finds it difficult to take care of its established trade. The report says: "The Southern California oil fields, while producing approximately 81,000 barrels daily, cannot keep up with the demand for gasoline because of the fact that very little of this oil is suitable for refining. The best refinable oil comes from the northern oil fields of the state and statistics show that the great northern field is falling off, and that no new big wells are being brought in to augment the output.

"Unless more suitable oils for refining are produced in Southern California, the cost of drilling wells reduced, the production greatly increased, or some method found for the cracking up of the oils so that more gasoline can be obtained, that commodity will take some sharp advances in a very short time."

Season Is Ending With Fewer Quail Than Ever Before

With the quail season ending next Wednesday evening, hunters hereabouts have no regrets to offer. So far as local hunting is concerned, the season might as well have come to an end a month ago. Of course, here and there hunters found a few minutes of good shooting, but in the main the birds became so badly scattered long ago that hunting brought few results.

The season has emphasized the necessity of a closed season for Orange county quail, else the quail will be exterminated in this section. The only chance that a flock has for living over to the next season is for its remnant to keep in heavy brush.

The birds are so much scattered now that they are found only in small flocks. If a man in a day's hunt finds a dozen birds getting up together he is doing well. And that dozen, more than likely, will get over the hill and into heavy brush as fast as quail wings can carry them.

There are fewer quail now than there were at the end of last season, and last season left fewer than did the season before it. This is the declaration of any number of hunters who have been watching the progress of local game conditions.

The season this year opened on October 15 and ends on December 31, having been shoved ahead just a month. This move was in the right direction, as the birds will have a chance to settle down before mating season arrives. Birds that have been stirred up just before mating season will not mate.

GARDEN GROVE WILL HEAR FINE CANTATA

GARDEN GROVE, Dec. 27 — The Anaheim Choral Society of the First M. E. Church, will give its Christmas cantata in the Garden Grove Methodist Episcopal church at 8 o'clock Monday evening, Dec. 29. The society gave this cantata in the Anaheim high school auditorium last Sunday evening to a packed house and it was so much enjoyed that it was arranged to have the singers come to Garden Grove. The singers will be in costume and during the evening a silver offering will be taken up. Half of the proceeds will go to the Garden Grove church and half to the choral society. Arrangements have been made to accommodate a large audience.

PRESENT TO WIFE WAS HANDSOME ELECTRIC

When Mrs. W. A. Huff stepped out of the front door of her residence on Christmas morning she found a handsome 1920 Milburn electric waiting for her at the curb. EMPLOYEES SHOW APPRECIATION OF MATTHEWS AS 'BOSS'

Head of Orange County Ignition Works Is Given Fine Gold Ring

The fair and courteous treatment that has won for Earl Matthews the big business success of the Orange County Ignition Works has also won for him the confidence and admiration of the employees of the establishment, and their friendship for him was evidenced on Christmas in the presentation to him of a fine gold ring, which was presented on the behalf of the employees by W. A. Biddick.

The ring is a handsome and a valuable one, carrying the emblem of the Elks on the top with Masonic emblems on each side. The presentation was an entire surprise to Matthews and he was so overcome by the appreciation expressed by the employees through Biddick that he was unable to find his voice for a moment to make reply. The ring will be cherished by him as a token from the men with whom he has been associated in the daily business grind for a long time.

Expansion of the business is evidenced by the fact that the company is preparing to enlarge its capital stock. It originally was capitalized for $10,000 four or five years ago and today the stock on hand, equipment and good will represents three or four times the amount of the capitalization. The capital stock is to be increased to $50,000 to take up the difference between the original capitalization and the value of the business today and to take care of a further enlargement that is planned.

Larger quarters are needed to accommodate the big trade that has been developed by the company and definite plans are now under consideration for providing the additional room.

Complete Marking Streets for Parking of Automobiles Look Out for Fire Hydrants and Spaces at Corners

New Regulations Will Be Enforced and Arrests Made Soon

The street department has completed the marking of streets where angle parking is provided on streets covered in the ordinance recently passed by the city council. Parallel parking is the regulation on sides opposite to the angle position.

It has been apparent this week that many of the streets were marked prior to this week, and that considerable publicity has been given to the new regulations, that there are hundreds of drivers in this vicinity who have not taken the trouble to inform themselves of the provisions of the new ordinance.

The white lines clearly indicate where an auto should be parked and the manner in which it should be driven up to the curb. Yet every day machines were seen standing parallel with curbs where stalls were marked for angle parking.

On the traffic corners a heavy red line indicates the dead line for parking toward the corner. No one should park a car between the red line and the corner and yet hundreds did this very thing this week.

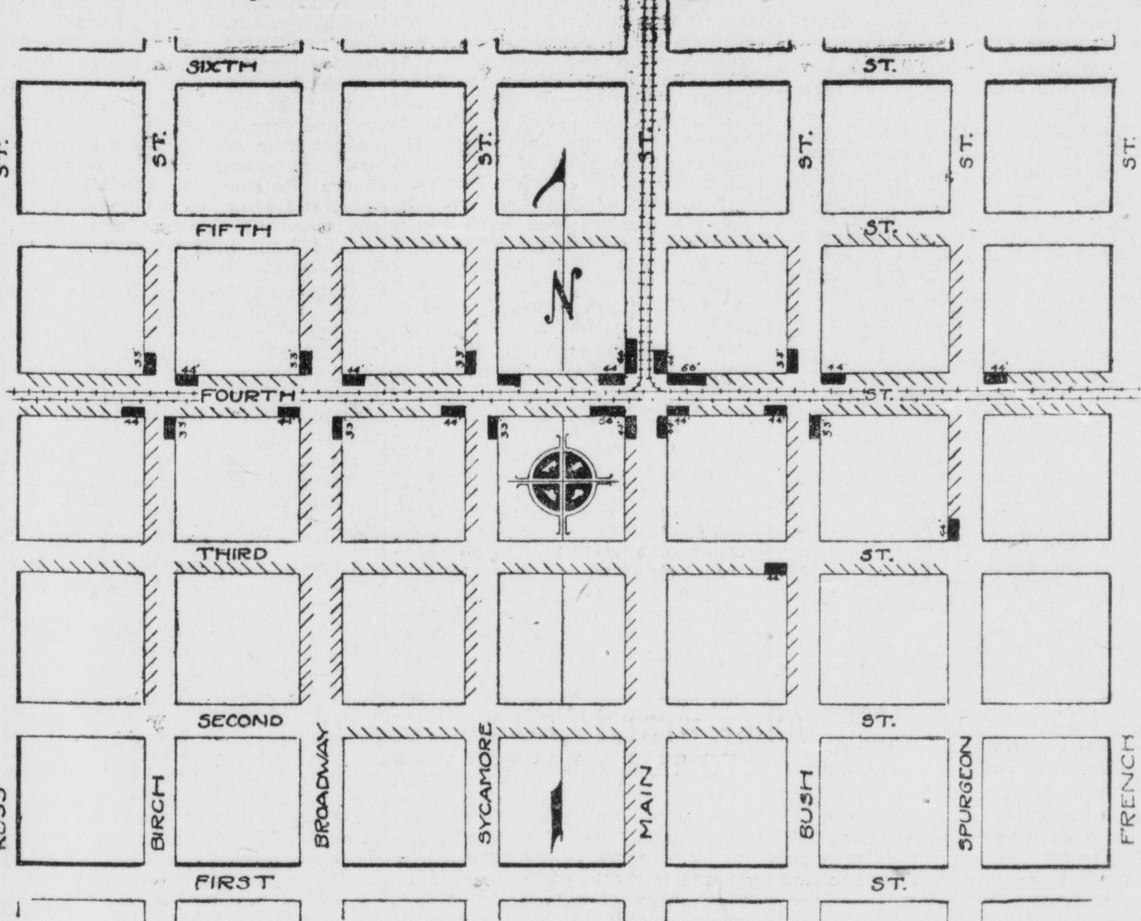

The officers are going to be lenient for a time with drivers and perhaps will adopt the policy of warning rather than arresting. After a while, however, this is going to become monotonous and arrests will be made and the parties responsible for violations will be haled in to court and made to pay a fine. This will make an impression that they will not soon forget.

It is hardly conceivable that there is a man or woman driving a machine today who does not know that it is a violation of traffic laws to park within fifteen feet of a fire hydrant. This regulation is violated every day in Santa Ana, and it was violated numerous times this week, in spite of the fact that red paint lines fifteen feet on either side of a plug have marked the space between as reserved.

The cut herewith showing the streets over which the new ordinance will control is given with a view to putting the streets in black and white before the eyes of local drivers, that all may know where they may park and the character of parking that is allowed on certain streets. On streets outside the zone covered by the ordinance, cars should be driven up parallel with the curb, with the inside wheel not more than eighteen inches from the curb. In the restricted zone, where parallel parking is provided for, the inside wheels must be within eighteen inches of the curb.

Close observation of the cut will show that with the exception of Broadway all north and south streets have angle parking on the west side of the street, with the parallel system on the opposite side. Parallel

Parallel parking is scheduled for the opposite side of the streets upon which angle parking is permitted except the angle position is permissible on both sides of Broadway and Fourth. The heavy shaded blocks at corners denote the traffic corner, where parking is prohibited. The figures give the number of feet reserved between the corner and the last stall.

J. E. Pleasants Tells of Hunt For Horse Thieves

TODAY instead of a story of hunting for game, the Register readers who have been following the Old Hunter Series will have the story of a hunt for horse thieves. This is the first of a series of tales of thrilling events of early days in which pioneers of this section had a part.

It has long been the hope of the Register to gather for publication experiences of old timers of this section. Through the Old Hunter Series, which began last April, the way has been opened up. The pioneers, as well as the readers whose residences here do not date so far back, are hungry for the stories of the old days.

It is hoped that within the next year many articles such as this may be published. In the meantime other stories of early day hunting will appear in the Register.

This article was written by the loved pioneer, J. E. Pleasants of Silverado, whose hunting experiences made two deeply interesting articles early in the Old Hunter Series. For several years, starting about 1860, he was superintendent of the Wolfskill stock ranch. At that time his home was beside the old spring, which every pioneer knows, across the road from the County Park, always in the old days known as "the picnic grounds," in Santiago canyon.

IN THE early days there was quite an extensive trade carried on between Los Angeles and Salt Lake. The Mormons at that time got a

HOWARD WALKER IS SATISFIED WITH NASH BUSINESS

Has Maintained An Average of Six and Seven Cars Per Month

Howard Walker, Nash agent, has been saving wood without making much noise, for he is one of the few agents who have been getting cars right along and in position to keep within gunshot distance of the end of the waiting list.

Six and seven cars a month has been his average and these he has been placing in the hands of waiting purchasers as fast as he could and in the order in which the purchase was made.

Only two cars have arrived so far this month, but a carload is expected here Monday or Tuesday, before the month passes, and its arrival will maintain the monthly average.

"I have had good business throughout the year and the cars have been coming from the factory with fair regulation," said Walker today. "I could sell more of them if I could get them, but with my average of six and seven cars a month I have no particular reason to complain. This is a better average than a majority of dealers have been getting. They could also sell the machines if they could get them. The people of the United States are prosperous and they have been buying new cars right and left, with the result that the demand has been far in excess of the capacities of the factories to produce.

"The Nash is proving its worth on the roads every day and every driver is delighted with the performance of his car. The result is that they are passing the word on to their friends, who sooner or later become Nash drivers."

200 FORDSONS IN USE HERE BY JANUARY 1

With 193 Fordsons in use in Orange county, George Dutton of Anaheim, Orange county distributor, expects the number to pass the 200 mark before the first of the new year.

During November, thirty-two of these tractors were sold, it being the biggest month's business in this county since the Fordson has been on the market.

December promises to be an even bigger month, for twenty-nine orders have been taken, with indications that the number of sales between now and the first of the month will be more than the number required to equal the November record.

J. E. Pleasants Tells of Catching Horse Thieves

Many Gentle Animals Stolen By Bands, Taken to Utah and Sold; Two Counties Organize Poses To Stamp Out the Thieves

were freighted by means of wagon trains, over what was called the Southern route. This came through Las Vegas, Nevada, thence through California south of the Amargosa river and on to San Bernardino. It was the same route on which, in 1857, in the southwestern part of Utah, occurred the greatest tragedy in the history of the Southwest—the Mountain Meadow Massacre.

Following these freight trains were a class of Mormon horse thieves, which in time came to be a regularly organized band. They made systematic inroads upon the stock of the ranchers, stealing a few at a time as opportunity afforded, and it was usually gentle animals that were their prey.

These they collected in the grassy meadows of the north side of the San Gabriel and San Bernardino mountains, where feed and water were abundant, until there was a herd of sufficient size to be driven to Utah and sold.

Organize Poses.

This system of theft became such an evil that in 1861 the owners of several ranches in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties decided to equip a posse of men to hunt out the thieves and try to recover some of the lost stock.

Among the ranch owners who headed this movement were William Workman, uncle to ex-Mayor Workman of Los Angeles, John Rowland, father of ex-Senator William Rowland, William Wolfskill, father of Joseph Wolfskill of Los Angeles, Frank Temple and Francisco Lopez, Messrs. Workman and Rowland were at that time joint owners in La Puente Rancho. Mr. Wolfskill owned several ranches in Los Angeles county, and was a large stock-raiser.

I was at that time in charge of one of his ranches, the Lomas de Santiago, which has since become absorbed by the San Joaquin ranch, one of the largest holdings in Orange county.

We kept horses on the Lomas de Santiago at that time, and as we had lost quite a number, I was not unwilling to become one of the searching party. The posse consisted of William Warren, who, being somewhat skilled in such matters, was chosen leader, Frank Rice, Nat Shrewsbury, C. Laughlin, J. Armenta, and myself. We were all well armed, and well mounted, having had the pick of the middle horses of the several ranches.

Early in October we left Los Angeles, having each of us obtained official authority for making arrests. We went to San Bernardino, which place we entered singly and after nightfall, in order to avoid suspicion, as it was commonly known that these bands of thieves had a rendezvous at that place and friends on the lookout.

Warren had communicated with Sheriff Smith of San Bernardino county, and he had made all necessary arrangements for us, even to the extent of getting accommodations for us in private houses, as he thought it best for us not to be seen at the hotel.

Reach San Bernardino.

We stayed in San Bernardino the following day, with due caution, learning what we could. We left town about nine in the evening, accompanied by Sheriff Smith, who had decided to help us in our search. We were much pleased with this arrangement, as he was a man noted for his coolness and intrepid courage in the face of danger.

Our way lay up the Cajon Pass to the Swarthmore Canyon, which we reached about two a. m. There we camped till daybreak. We then followed the canyon and scoured the mountain sides for traces of our game. We found many indications of their having been in the vicinity, and finally came to a log cabin on the mountain side by a spring, near which grazed a few head of horses. The sole occupant of the cabin was a Utah Indian, who either could not or would not speak enough English to be at all satisfactory. We labored with him long, but in vain; his broken lingo of mixed Indian and English afforded no clue.

Only once, in a moment of apparent inspiration, he asked, "You steal 'em horses?" We answered "yes," at which he laughed and seemed to grow confidential, but it was all too much in his native tongue so that it served no purpose for our ends.

We camped at this spring for the night, however, hoping his companions might return. He was friendly and offered no objections to this.

Among the horses feeding near the cabin was one bearing the brand of Francisco Lopez. Of this we took possession without any opposition from the Indian. The next morning, nothing having resulted from our watch, and the Indian making signs that horses had gone toward the Mojave river, we decided to go in that direction.

We reached Lane's Crossing that afternoon after about a twenty-five mile ride. There was a trading post kept by a man named Lane at the Mojave river on the main emigrant road. Lane was well known for his honesty and truthfulness, so we felt that if he could give us any information it would be reliable. He lived there alone, a bachelor, in a log cabin of considerable dimensions, which he had made a fortified stronghold against possible attack from Indians or other marauders.

We made known our errand, but Lane could give us very little information. He had seen suspicious-looking characters pass both ways, but none with loose stock. He advised us to go down the river fifteen or twenty miles, as collectors of stolen stock would avoid the main road where practicable, and here the country was quite open.

We acted on his advice, and spent two days in searching for traces along the river, but with no results. We came to the conclusion that the objects of our search must be farther west in the mountains about the Rock Creek region.

Leaving the river very early one morning, we returned to the mountains, pushing farther west than we had previously done. During this afternoon one of the party killed a deer, which was a very acceptable addition to our rations.

After reaching the meadows, which lie at a considerable elevation, we proceeded cautiously, as in many places we found signs of our quarry in the shape of deserted camps where stock had been herded at no distant date.

The mountains along here were interspersed with grassy meadows and running streams. The grazing was excellent, and in those days this section was remote from any settlement, making it an ideal rendezvous for these gangs of thieves with their stolen herds.

About sunset, as we were nearing the top of a ridge, some of the party who were in the advance saw a smoke, which evidently came from a camp fire.

Capture the Guard.

We came together, and after a short consultation we made charge upon the camp, which was just over the ridge on the edge of a pretty meadow by the side of a stream.

The camp was guarded by one man, who was evidently determined to keep camp and herd the band of horses that were grazing in the meadow. The herder had started his camp fire to cook his supper, but to his misfortune had lighted it a little too early. He was completely taken by surprise, and at first made an attempt to get his gun, then seeming to think that of no use started to run, but was suddenly stopped by the sheriff, who called to him to halt or be shot.

He then quietly did the only rational thing—gave himself into custody. He was a short, thick-set young fellow, with a hard face and sullen manner. At first he refused to tell us anything at all of his accomplices, but after a time, on being told that he would be well treated as long as he behaved and answered proper questions, he consented to talk a little, especially after seeing that we identified a number of the horses by their brands.

He said that there were a number of men collecting horses to make up a band to take to Salt Lake. They were scattered among the settlements gathering stock as they could to take back into the mountains to be kept there until they should accumulate enough to make the drive. Of his own party all he would say was that there were several of them and that they might be in that night or the next.

With this we had to be content and take our chances. There was considerable risk in lying there in wait for the gang to return, not knowing their number, but it seemed the only thing to do.

Our prisoner's supply of provisions was quite scant, and our own was getting low, so we hoped he was telling the truth about the time he expected his party in.

We quickly cooked and ate supper, and made ready to receive the outlaws on their return. The sheriff handcuffed the prisoner and placed him under guard at some little distance from the camp. We took turns sleeping, and doing guard duty through the night.

Horse Thieves Appear.

The next day dragged to an end, and still no arrivals. We identified the greater number of the stock as belonging to the different owners who had organized our party, but hoped to secure still more, when we banded the rest of our game.

Dark came the second night, and we made our preparations as before. It was quite cold and uncomfortable for the guard as we dared not keep up a fire after dark for fear of giving the enemy an advantage. This night passed without incident, and the next day and the third night until about three o'clock in the morning.

At this time we were suddenly aroused by the guard, who said there were horses coming up the ridge. We then made all possible haste to carry into execution the plan previously agreed upon—to place ourselves in a position to surround the thieves after they came into camp. We quietly stationed ourselves at short distances from camp, each man taking a place before selected and as much under cover as possible. We lay thus quietly waiting for their advance.

They came up the ridge, entering the meadow by the same trail we had come, driving quite a herd of horses. We could see them outlined against the sky as they came over the ridge, and there were but three men.

They turned the horses back into the meadow, then rode on into camp, calling several times for Jim; but no Jim answered, as Sheriff Smith had instructed him in an impressive manner that it would be unsafe to give the alarm in any way when his friends returned.

They seemed rather uneasy at receiving no response from their confederate, but came on to camp and began to unsaddle their tired horses. This was our opportunity.

We quickly surrounded them and ordered them to surrender. There were several shots fired on both sides, but as we were at first some distance apart and in the timber no one was hurt.

We secured two of them, the third escaped on foot. Two of our men chased him some distance, but finally lost him in the dense brush. They returned some time after daylight and we made preparations to return with the three prisoners and the stock to San Bernardino. Arriving there, we lodged the men in jail. We separated the stock, leaving those belonging to San Bernardino county in the care of the sheriff, and taking ours, returned to Los Angeles.

To State Prison.

We had recovered for the Los Angeles county ranchers about sixty head of stock. There were sixteen belonging to Mr. Workman alone. The prisoners in the San Bernardino jail were in due time convicted and sent to the state prison for a term of years. They all confessed their guilt, and their conviction had the effect of breaking up the nefarious ring of which they had been a part.

And now as to the fortunes of the man who escaped. Many of the old residents of Los Angeles county will remember the unprovoked murder of a very popular citizen in 1863—that of John Sanford. Mr. Sanford was a brother-in-law of General Phineas Banning, who was the founder of the town of Wilmington and father of the Banning Brothers, later owners of Santa Catalina Island. Mr. Sanford was driving in a buggy from Los Angeles to his ranch near Ft. Tejon. When within a few miles of the ranch, he overtook a man walking and carrying a roll of blankets on his back.

Tramps were unknown in those days, and as this was frequently the mode of travel for stranded miners looking for work, Mr. Sanford entertained no suspicion of the real character of the man, but kindly asked him to ride. The man accepted the invitation, and as they rode along said he was looking for work of any kind.

Mr. Sanford told him to go on to the ranch with him and he would try and find something for him to do. They rode on for some distance, when something about the harness getting out of order, Mr. Sanford stepped from the buggy to arrange it.

Sanford Murdered.

It was the custom at that time for every man to carry a revolver when making long trips into the country, and Mr. Sanford had his lying on the buggy seat in its case, as was his custom. This seemed to inspire the thought of crime in the mind of the man left in the buggy, for no sooner was his benefactor's back turned, than he seized the pistol, drew it from the case, and shot Mr. Sanford dead. He then rifled the dead man's pockets, obtained a trifling sum, un hitched the team, turned one horse loose and rode away on the other, taking his blankets and Mr. Sanford's watch and pistol.

Mr. Sanford's body and the deserted buggy were found within an hour by some teamsters coming over the road. They brought the body to Los Angeles and gave the alarm.

The town was wild with excitement over the terrible crime, and a large reward was offered for the murderer. Notices of the reward were posted in prominent places in the city, and in neighboring towns.

In those days it was more difficult to capture a criminal than now, owing to the scarcity of telegraph lines and to the fact of the thinly settled condition of the country. The first telegraph line between San Francisco and Los Angeles was not completed until 1860, and there was no connection with the smaller towns until a much later date. Owing to these conditions, it was no uncommon thing for the citizens to take an active part in assisting the officers in the capture of a criminal, where the crime committed called forth much public resentment.

About a week later a citizen stopping at a hotel in Santa Barbara had his suspicions aroused by a man traveling on foot, who stayed at the hotel over night. In some mysterious manner he connected this man with the Sanford murder, and could not rid his mind of the thought, though there seemed little ground for it. The next morning he told the landlord of his suspicions, and suggested their detention of the man until inquiries could be made. The landlord laughed at him and discouraged any interference with the stranger, who, he said, was only some poor fellow looking for work. After breakfast the stranger left the hotel, taking the road up the coast.

Murderer Captured.

Meanwhile, the man who had suspected him could not rid his mind of the conviction of this unknown man's guilt, and followed him, watching a chance for a safe attack. Finally passing the traveler, he awaited him at a turn in the road near a farm house, where he might call for assistance if necessary. There he grappled the suspected man, and after a severe struggle succeeded in throwing him to the ground, and held him there until help came.

They took the man back to town and had him arrested and searched. On his person was found Mr. Sanford's watch, and in his coat of blankets the pistol that had been the means of sending its owner to death. The prisoner was taken to Los Angeles and tried.

He confessed his crime, and gave in substance the facts relating to the murder as before mentioned. He was sentenced to be hanged, but the enraged citizens, fearing his possible escape before the day appointed, determined to execute the sentence at once.

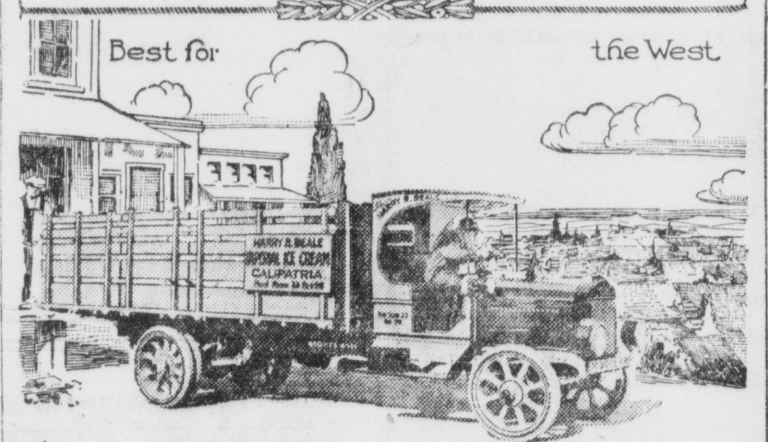

On the scaffold he was asked if he had anything to say, and replied that he had. He asked if there was any one present who had helped capture some horse thieves in the mountains near Rock Creek two years before. There were several replies in the affirmative. He then said that he was the man who escaped.

He stated that he had killed seven other men, besides being engaged in the atrocities of the Mountain Meadow Massacre. He expressed himself as having no remorse whatever for his crimes. He gave his name as Charles Wilkins, said he was of English birth, and that his parents were Mormons living in Salt Lake. After his statement was finished he was hanged without further ceremony.

I believe him to have been one of the most thoroughly hardened criminals ever brought to justice on the Pacific Coast.

1725 BRITISH GIRLS WED U. S. DOUGHBOYS

LONDON, Dec. 27 — Statistics show that 1725 British girls married American doughboys. Of these only seventeen remain to be sent to join their husbands in the United States. The Powhattan, the last transport leaving England, carried thirty-three wives of soldiers, three children and seventeen wives of sailors. These war brides are journeying in charge of the American Red Cross, which has advanced the money necessary for them to reach their husbands.

See How the Essex

Individual Cars Driven 20,000 Miles Without Repairs

Proved Endurance

Now time has proved how Essex retains those wanted qualities of silence, smoothness and power even after hardest service.

Such endurance was never expected of a light weight car.

But Essex' legion of friends know that aside from size the Essex has nothing in common with other light weight cars.

True, it has economy, which is the chief light car appeal. But only among large, high-priced cars are found comparisons for its performance-qualities.

Big Car Performance Light Car Economy

Think how many who formerly owned big, costly cars, now drive the Essex.

It proves mere size was not what they sought. They wanted qualities that heretofore only large, fine cars offered. But they prized such light car advantages as economy and nimbleness. When the Essex met their demands for fine car comfort, quality and performance, with the added advantage of light weight types, they chose it without hesitation.

The Essex was designed to embody the wanted qualities of the finest cars, in a size it would be possible to build at moderate cost.

What thousands say of it proves how well it meets those exactions.

Costs Less to Operate Easier to Handle

With the Essex you sacrifice no pleasure, comfort or performance ability that the big, costly car can give.

What car can show more speed? In any community you will find the Essex is rated with the fastest. In less than a year it has established its position as a performance car that all respect for ability.

And Essex owners are learning another quality that improves their esteem and affection for it. That is its endurance, which accounts for thousands of miles of transportation, free of repair or annoyance. They have discovered the Essex requires little attention.

Its solid, compact assembly, that has been proved in every trying test, will satisfy you, too, of its endurance powers.

Then take a ride in the Essex. It will reveal qualities that charm you as they have nearly a million others.

And you will make sure of having your Essex when you want it by placing your order well ahead of the desired delivery date.

Who Said "Boom?"—Nothing Doing In That Line Hereabouts—Absolutely

Misleading and Injurious to Speak of Building and Realty Activities As a 'Boom'—Analysis Proves the Contrary.

When Cost of Construction Is Considered Volume of Building During Past Year Below That of Pre-War Period.

BY WAYNE GOBLE

"I've seen 'booms,' and there was always a sad awakening afterwards. I've seen the time when you couldn't borrow more than fifty dollars on a place which cost you $2000."

How often during the past few weeks have you heard some old-timer give expression to such sentiments as this? How often has some acquaintance counseled against building new homes or business houses, declaring with downcast eyes that "The boom" will burst some of these days; or that "prices will come down" as soon as the "boom" is over, or something else in similar vein?

Now, honestly, how many of you good people of Santa Ana have held out investing or building in fear that the "boom" is going to end some day, or that the world is going to end?

"I see you have a 'building boom' down your way," some outsider will say, and you respond with, "Yes, we have done about $750,000 worth of building this year. Building materials are too high, though, and I'm putting my building off until things come down."

Where do you get such stuff, anyway? What calamity howler has been spreading his vicious propaganda of "do nothing" in your hearing? What's the matter with your gray matter and digestive apparatus, anyway?

Will lumber prices come down? And if so, what will bring them down, say, within five years? Are freight rates on lumber coming down within five years? Are the well-paid lumbermen going to consent to any radical cut in wages within five years? Is Europe going to get all the American lumber she needs within five years? Are the easily accessible forests, cut down to provide cheap lumber a few years back, going to grow up again within five years, ready for another cutting?

Will it pay you to wait five years to put up that building, even if there should be a 25 per cent cut in building prices at the end of five years, considering the fact that the value of your property is constantly increasing if you build, but remains practically stationary as long as it lies vacant?

Figure it out on the basis of what other property owners have done by building in years gone by.

Now, as to the alleged "boom." There is no "boom" in Santa Ana. There has been, to be sure, a very commendable building activity during the past few months, and the total cost of building authorized here has reached a new high mark.

But even so, when the year is ended, it will show a total valuation of less than $100,000 over the 1913 building record. And considering the double cost of things nowadays, it is probable that the actual volume of building done in 1919 will be only about half the work done in 1913, or 1911 or 1912 or 1914, all years running fairly close to the 1919 building record. Now what do you think of that?

We have built only about 138 dwelling houses here the past twelve months. In 1911, 253 new dwelling houses were erected; 273 in 1912, 191 in 1913, and 224 in 1914. There wasn't any "boom" during those years, so why should the present activity be classed under that name?

In fact, while we've gone ahead somewhat during the year just closed, the records in the building inspector's office seem to indicate that we have been pickers as compared with Santa Ana's building in the four years, 1911-1915.

The fact is, things were slowed down during the war, and we're just beginning to catch up. Yes, JUST BEGINNING, and 1920 promises to bring about some REAL activity in the building line, to compare in volume as well as in cost with previous years before the war.

To find out exactly how 1919 compares with former years, the building inspector's records were delved into, and they show interesting facts as to Santa Ana's building records for the past ten years, as set forth in the accompanying table.

Thru it comes down to this—that while building and real estate activities in Santa Ana are larger in volume than in most other towns of like size and character, they do not partake of a "boom" nature, either in volume or character.

Uncle Henry Says Ernie Johnson Grabs Real Star

(By Herman Reuter).

"WELL," said Uncle Henry, "Christmas is a thing o' the past for this year an' we kin now begin to settle down an' take a lee-tle notice o' other things."

"Which reminds me, young feller, thet I kin give you a tip thet the big city papers on the coast ain't got hold o' yet. Referrin' to Ernie Johnson—him thet's the head o' the Salt Lake baseball outfit."

"Johnson's been east, ye reckon, seein' what he cud do in the way o' diggin' up a passel o' young athletes fer nex' season. Well, one o' the birds he's picked up is N. A. Cullop, one o' the fust class pitchers o' the big leagues in the east."

"This man Cullop is likely to develop into right smart o' a adjunct in the Salt Lake aggregation nex' year, unless I miss my guess. Cullop, in 1917, pitched in 23 games, winnin' 14 out o' the string, and losin' 5. He finished the season with a pus-sentidge o' 737, which is putty good, to my way o' thinkin'. He allowed 2.05 runs per game, in that year."

"Cullop wuz with the New York Americans in 1917. Last year he wuz a member o' the St. Louey Americans an' at one time he wuz a puttin' 'em across for the Senators."

"An' here's another thing. Ernie Johnson's got the promise o' three or four other fust class athletes out o' a certain American League team. I ain't sayin' which team it is, but ye'll find out all about it in the course o' a few weeks."

Uncle Henry's touring car was parked in front of the city hall. His two handsome daughters were upstairs in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, putting on exhibition a big bouquet of roses, grown on the old man's ranch, east of Anaheim.

"Guess the two gals won't be through chinnin' with Jim Metzgar fer a bit," said Uncle Henry, drawing forth the inevitable corn-cob pipe.

"Ye remember, young feller, I wuz tellin' ye o' them there white lines, marked off fer parkin' spaces on the streets o' Santa Ana?" he demanded, spitting with unerring aim at one of the lines. "Well, I believe thet one o' the reasons why some o' 'em ain't more permanent like is because o' the ile thet wuz used in mixin' some o' the paint."

"The other day Sam Jernigan—the one thet's city marshal here, ye know?—went down into the basement o' the city hall to look up a five gallon can o' lubricatin' ile he kept down there fer emergency use o' city machines. Well, he finds the can—but no ile. The can wuz cleaned dry. Jernigan looks around some and finds a couple o' buckets o' paint thet'd been mixed fer paintin' them there white lines on the streets. He makes a examination an' sees that the lubricatin' ile hed been mixed with the paint. No wonder some o' them there marks won't stay put."

"But I wuz talkin' about base-bawl," the old man continued. "Jimmy Austin hez signed his contract with the St. Louey Americans fer nex' year. Which is quite some item o' news, I'm claimin', young feller. Every time ole Jimmy Austin signs up a contract it order be made a kind of national event, like. When a man's been playin' base-bawl as long as Austin hez, he orter git a medal, it seems to me. I suppose he'll be hoppin' around third base, lively as ever, along about 1999, more or less."

"Funny thing about Austin. Every year the scotts, figgerin' he's about through cavortin' aroun' third base, goes out into the tall an' uncult an' picks up a passel o' prospects fer steppin' into Ole Man Austin's shoes. An' durin' the trainin' season there's the ole gent, coachin' the young talent, givin' 'em tips an' doin' all he kin to git 'em on the right track. But jes' the same, when the St. Louey Americans lines up fer their fust games o' the season, somehow o' nuther ye kin always find one James Austin a holdin' down the third sack, an' none o' the youngsters anywhere in sight. TRAILERS SAVE MAKING SURE OF ROAD REPAIRS BATTERY JAR PERFECTION SAYS ROSS

"The heavy truck pounding along the highways is the most destructive agent to road surfaces known," declares Fred Ross of the Wm. P. Lutz Co., local distributors of Utility Trailers. "For instance, a six-ton truck loaded to capacity forces a downward thrust which in operating amounts to a tremendous pounding force upon the road surface. Almost all of the weight is thrown upon the rear wheels of the truck so that the weight is concentrated. If this weight can be distributed the saving in road repairs is enormous during a year's time."

"By trailerizing a six-ton truck—that is, attaching a trailer and instead of permitting the weight to rest almost entirely on the rear wheels of the truck, to distribute it over four additional wheels, road surfaces are able to stand the wear much better. A six-ton load carried by a truck and trailer means theoretically that only 1500 pounds weight is thrown on each of the eight wheels. Of course, a little more weight is thrown on the rear axle of the driving truck, but this is compensated by less weight on the remaining six wheels."

"Even less stress is placed upon the road if two trailers are attached to the truck, thus distributing the load's weight over twelve wheels."

"Leading highway engineers are recommending the use of trailers attached to light trucks rather than the use of single heavy trucks, as actual tests and close observation of road traffic have convinced them that in the distribution of weight lies the solution of cheap road upkeep."

"Some idea of the care used in the construction of Willard batteries may be obtained from the severe electrical and mechanical tests which each jar has to pass before it can become part of a Willard battery," says Earl Matthews of the Orange County Ignition Works, local Willard agents. Each one of these rubber jars has only to stand a pressure of about two volts in actual service, and is carefully protected from mechanical shock. But before these jars can get by the electrical inspector, each one of them must prove its ability to stand up under a pressure of not a few volts but of a full 24,000 volts; and in order to make sure that each piece of rubber is mechanically strong, each lot is sampled and the sample submitted to a tension of 3600 pounds to the square inch."

Sixty-one Members of Circulation Department Participate In Presentation

What is that some poet has said
"The gift without the giver is bare?"
The editor of the Register is the proud possessor of one Christmas present that carried with it the good wishes of sixty-one (61) people. No, not the entire Register staff, only the circulation department.
This gift was accompanied by an autographic scroll, which reads as follows:

CHRISTMAS, 1919
Dear Mr. Baumgartner:—
We, the members of the Register circulation department, wish you joy with all our might, as we are quite sure you know, but Christmas wouldn't seem quite right unless we told you so.

"My daughter, eight years of age, used a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a year ago last spring when she had whooping cough, and she recovered from the attack in a short time. Since then we have always kept a bottle of that remedy in the house and have used it with good results," writes Mrs. F. L. Newton, Irving, N. Y.—Adv.

CARS INCREASE LAND VALUES. CLAIM

"Automobiles are notable for increasing the value of land," says Robt. Atkinson, manager of the Reid Motor Co., local dealer in Chevrolet passenger and commercial cars.

"They have done this by making all land more accessible, more profitable. They have eliminated distances and brought city and country closer.

"Suburban property is in greater demand than before the days of automobile transportation. Formerly, the advantages of life outside the city were limited to the efficiency of railway connections. Now the automobile owner is independent of every other conveyance. The convenience of family shopping and getting about generally, no longer exists—in any season.

"The early use of automobiles demonstrated the inadequacy of our roads system. In the few years that motor cars have been recognized utilities, good roads have spread in all directions. They now form one of the most valuable assets of the nation. Together with the automobile they link all parts of the country.

"In the farming areas the effect of automobiles is particularly notable. They have made farm life more attractive, and farm property more profitable. Passenger cars and trucks shorten the farmer's day. Their all around utility on the farm itself saves time and labor and results in increased production and more profits.

"It no longer makes a difference to the farmer whether a railroad is near his property or not. His route to market is no longer dependent on steel rails, nor the limited capacity of his teams. The automobile makes every town, within a radius of twenty miles or more, both a convenient market and source of supply.

"As farms have become more con-

SIX OAKLANDS ARRIVE HERE FROM EAST

Employees of Edgar and Hays, 502 North Broadway, local agents for Oakland cars, today were unloading a shipment of six 1920 models, five of which were touring cars and one a sedan.

The cars are to be delivered Monday, according to Neil H. Edgar. Four will be delivered at once, one to J. A. Kyle, 411 West Chestnut street, Santa Ana; one to D. H. Berner, of Garden Grove; one to Harry Lemke, 320 North Orange avenue, Orange; and one to H. Hineman, of Olive. The names of the purchasers of the other two Oakland cars were not announced.

The local Oakland agents are compelled to turn down on an average of three orders daily, owing to the lack of cars, Edgar said. It will be two or three weeks before another shipment is received. This condition is brought about by the coal shortage in the eastern manufacturing centers, Edgar stated.

FIGHT CHALLENGE IS GROVE MAN'S CHARGE

George H. Barry hurled a challenge to C. D. Luce to fight, and conducted himself in a tumultuous and offensive manner at Garden Grove, according to a complaint, charging disturbance of the peace, which was on file here today in justice court. Luce swore to the complaint.

venient, more productive and more profitable through the utility of the automobile, their value has increased. And that the farmer appreciates this service is proved by the fact that more than half the cars in the United States are owned in the agricultural districts.

STRUCK BY BICYCLE DIES OF INJURIES

Death, following a fracture of the skull, came to John F. Horsley of Oceanside, formerly of Santa Ana, on Christmas day. Death was due to an injury that occurred when the man was struck by a bicycle ridden by a Mexican boy named Jesus Garcia.

The accident occurred near the center of Oceanside. The boy said that Mr. Horsley stepped from behind a telephone pole into the street and the boy did not see him in time to avoid the collision. The man was knocked down and his skull fractured by striking the ground. The boy is held blameless.

Mr. Horsley was a G. A. R. veteran. He lived in Santa Ana for twelve years, leaving here about three years ago. While here he had a paint shop on Fruit street. He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Harry L. Evans of Santa Ana and Mrs. Leroy Hawken, of San Bernardino. The funeral will be at 2 o'clock, Monday.

CHRISTMAS DINNER GIVEN JAIL INMATES

Largely through the agency of the Salvation Army of this city, Christmas day was not allowed to pass unnoticed, as far as the inmates of the county jail were concerned. On Christmas day there were twenty-nine persons at the institution, and they were given the following menu: Roast beef and brown gravy, mashed potatoes, corn, apple sauce, celery, mince pie and coffee. The Salvation Army supplied two apples, an orange and a box of candy for each of the prisoners.

BLINDPIGGER IN CLUTCH OF THE FEDERAL LAW

With federal authorities backing him, City Marshal Sam Jernigan is going to conduct a hot campaign against sellers of booze. Christmas morning at 2 o'clock found him and members of his force actively on the job, when they visited the home of P. Martinez and arrested him for the illicit sale of wine.

Martinez has long been under suspicion, but the officers were not able to get the goods on him until yesterday morning. Martinez had been making a good profit by selling wine, disposing of the stuff at $3.50 per quart.

Jernigan, Neuschwanger, Ryan and Combs were in the raid on Martinez' home, and marked money with which liquor was purchased was found on the booze seller.

Representatives of the Federal government are expected here to take Martinez before the federal court in Los Angeles.

U. S. Will Replace Liberty Bond Lost By Fire In Heater

Two hundred dollars, deposited as security by D. T. Jackson of this city, was in the hands of United States Commissioner Long, in Los Angeles, today, preliminary to the replacement of a $100 Liberty Bond which was burned to cinders in a hot water heater.

Mrs. Jackson, it was said, hid the $100 bond among the copper coils of the heater in question. Later, having forgotten that she had placed the bond in the heater, she lighted the gas and the bond was burned to cinders.

Yesterday Jackson visited Commissioner Long in Los Angeles and was informed that he would have to give security in twice the amount asked. He put up the money, and the government will issue the Jacksons another Liberty Bond.

News from Orange County Towns

Harper Items

HARPERVILLE, Dec. 27.—Christmas was celebrated with happy hearts by the residents of Harperville and the country round about. Men and women and children were seen in all directions and at all hours with mysterious looking packages, and more mysterious countenances. One man was seen to carry a package into his barn, to keep it hidden until Christmas morning. While he was playing the mysterious game, shrewdly as he thought, his wife was more mysteriously playing at her own end of the line.

Mr. Dickson, senior, who, until recently was a resident of Harperville, and now in business with his son in Santa Ana, was the victim of an automobile accident last Sunday at Long Beach. Mr. Dickson was driving his Overland, and with him was his father and Mrs. Dinkers, when some new man at the wheel in a new Maxwell, ran fairly into him, and when the machines collided, Mr. Dickson and his companions were shaken up but fortunately no one was injured seriously. Both machines were put out of commission.

W. R. Young (Billy) was a visitor at Long Beach last Sunday and failed to reach home till a late hour at night. Bad car service is the explanation.

Mrs. N. Harmon, who has been ill with a rheumatic shoulder, that has threatened to send her to bed, is now able to be about as usual. Mr. N. Harmon (Nath) is displaying a fine specimen of coyote pelt caught while visiting his gold mines.

Harry Ackerman, recently from the Sunflower state, while out rabbit hunting one day last week, looked into a cactus bush and saw a large snake. He called to his companion and the head of the snake, a large rattler, was removed by a load of shot. At the crack of the gun a rattling and hissing was heard and a second snake of the same size as the first one protruded its poisonous head. This also was shot. Ten rattlers were removed from the one snake. Harry hunted snakes as a matter of protection the rest of the day.

Mr. Hatcher is preparing for a hunt. He was seen the day before Christmas in Garden Grove with a gun in two parts.

Clarence Pearson has moved to his ranch on Katella avenue, and he and Mrs. Pearson spent Christmas with Thomas Plant and family. Mr. Plant manages the terminal hotel for all comers to California from Detroit, Michigan. Mr. Plant is never happier than when he reads or learns of blizzards in Michigan, and says he has no pity for any one who chooses to live in such a climate.

Miss Mary Spayd, principal of one of the San Diego schools spent her Christmas vacation in Los Angeles and visiting her father and mother, Rev. H. B. Spayd and wife, at the ranch near Harperville. Miss Spayd says San Diego is all right, but the ranch is the place for a vacation.

Col. Garfield Allen is seriously planning a new hunting trip. The Colonel is the leading nimrod of all this section. He is also a poet of more than ordinary interest and ability. He has a poem on the Pelican that is really a classic.

Professor Pitts, the popular principal of the Garden Grove schools, is also a successful chicken man. He has installed an electric light system, and his hens are threatening to break the high cost of eggs, the lights are turned on after sundown and the hens think it is day light and continue to produce eggs.

Dr. C. A. Bowers, wife and daughter Cleo, were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rollin Rosset. The doctor is an attaché of the Huntington Beach Sugar factory, and also an expert deep water fisherman.

Hugh Tyler, who recently purchased the Hamilton ranch, from the Merchants' National Bank of Los Angeles, has a force of Mexicans removing the eucalyptus trees from the place and cutting them into firewood.

Prof. Meggelson, a recent comer from the east and an author and lecturer on Psychology delivered a very interesting and instructive lecture at the Garden Grove Baptist church. The professor is just now taking out cypress trees near the road in front of his ranch, and also preparing the manuscript for his new book on psychology.

The visit of Mr. Burns, representative of the Register in this community, seems to have borne fruit. The whistle of the delivery boy can be heard regularly now, and Harperville folks say they can now mark time by the whistle so regular is the call to come and get your paper.

For some time there have been whisperings of a ghost in and about Harperville, but no one seemed willing to be quoted as having seen an eye witness. But since no less a personage than Dr. Russell Conwell of the Temple church, Philadelphia, declares from his pulpit that he talked to his deceased wife a number of times, Dr. George Washington Schroeder has assumed the responsibility and says emphatically that on his return to his home Christmas eve, he distinctly saw seated on the steps of his recent addition to his home, an hombre, and that had it not been foggy he could have distinguished and recognized the spirit but feels quite certain that it hailed from Missouri.

Henry Blaeholder returned last week from his bear hunt. Henry is an annual bear hunter. No one really knows whether Henry killed a bear or not. It requires courage of the first order to hunt bears, and almost as much courage is needed to ask a bear hunter personal questions on his return.

Mr. Tiser has a flock of pigeons and also a splendid tractor, and the noise of the pigeons when flying and the thrum of his tractor so much resemble each other that it is difficult to distinguish the pigeons from the tractor when not seeing one or the other.

Mr. Broady is the recognized leader by way of information on ranching. He is an officer in the farm bureau, and takes more than ordinary interest in all things vital to ranchers. Just now he is much interested in the new phone system we are soon to have in this vicinity. Everyone welcomes the coming phone, as all phones have been taken out in the vicinity since Mr. Burleson or some other dignitary threw a wrench into the phones of Harperville.

The Los Alamitos church and Sunday school gave an entertainment to the boys and girls Christmas eve. A splendid programme was rendered and Santa Claus came in at the proper time to give the boys and girls a Christmas treat. This occasion was considered the best ever of its kind. The impersonator of Santa Claus did his part so well that folks are guessing yet who Santa Claus was.

H. B. DeWitt is spending Christmas holidays at Tulare. He and his family will be away from their home for a week or longer.

Charles Schroeder, an employee of the San Pedro ship yards, took his Christmas dinner with his parents.

Billy McClintock is preparing to cut his alfalfa and everyone about Harperville has commenced to prepare for rain. It always rains when Billy is haying.

INVITATION EXTENDED BY SYMPHONY MANAGER

The Register has received the following wire from Mrs. Albert S. Hoyt, president of the Symphony organization:

"We would like to invite the people of your community through yop to be present and enjoy the great open air symphony concert Sunday afternoon at Woodside park, Pasadena, at 3 o'clock. The Los Angeles Symphony orchestra of eighty pieces will present a wonderful program. There are no charges. Every one is welcome."

Wintersburg-Smeltzer

WINTERSBURG AND SMELTZER, Dec. 27.—Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Barry are absent for a week, having left for the North Monday of this week to be present at a family reunion which was to have been held Christmas day at the home of Mrs. Barry's sister at Montaka. The Barry's will return some time the coming week.

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Farrar attended on Christmas day a reunion of the Farrar family. The delightful affair was this year celebrated at Pomona at the home of a granddaughter, Mrs. Alva Farrar Mitchell, and the family was most delightfully entertained at a sumptuous turkey dinner by this young couple. Thirty relatives were present, with ten unable to attend. It was decided to change the time of the yearly reunion from the holidays to summer time, when it can be more easily arranged for the gathering to take place. A regular organization was formed, officers and committees having been appointed. The entire party was greatly delighted with the pleasant day, which was made more pleasant by the presence of several relatives from Indiana, nephews of B. A. Farrar, who are spending the winter at Burbank. It had been a number of years since the members of the two branches of the family had met. Mr. and Mrs. Farrar made the trip to Pomona in company with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Farrar and family of Huntington Beach and returned home the same evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hyden were guests on Christmas day at the Rush home at Huntington Beach. Mr. and Mrs. G. Southern celebrated Monday with a dinner, designed for the Christmas season, that being the only day this week the entire family could be together. Miss Gladys Southern was down from Los Angeles at that time, having arrived Sunday evening, and returning Monday morning.

Rev. and Mrs. J. Scott Wilmarth entertained delightfully at their home Christmas day, a party of eastern friends who are wintering in the Southland. These were Mrs. Gertrude Barnes and daughter, Miss Louise, of Minneapolis, Minn., who are at present stopping in Los Angeles, and Mr. and Mrs. John Eick, Nebraska friends who are spending some time in Pasadena. The guests arrived Wednesday evening, leaving Friday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Bradbury gave a dinner at their home Christmas day, with all members of the immediate family present. Their daughter, Mrs. Fern Hall, and husband, and the latter's sister, Miss Gladys Hall, came down for the day and Mrs. Hall is remaining as a guest over New Year's.

On Sunday morning, Rev. J. Scott Wilmarth, pastor of the local Methodist church, will speak upon the subject of "The New Road." His evening discourse will be based upon the subject of "The Sinner Became a Saint." All services at the usual hours.

Christmas was the incentive for a family reunion at the home of Mrs. Mary E. Clemens at Wintersburg and gathered about her for the occasion were her entire family of ten children with the exception of one, a daughter, Mrs. Geo. Gano, of Fullerton, who, with her family, was unable to be present. Fifty-one, all relatives but two, were of the family party, and included three sons, seven daughters, one daughter-in-law, six sons-in-law, twenty-five grandchildren, three step-grandchildren, one grandson-in-law and two great grandchildren. The home was prettily decorated with pepper boughs, the red and green leaves and berries lending an added holiday note to the festive scene.

The children were given the place of honor at the first table, the second being occupied by the older members of the party. The dinner was a most sumptuous one. The day, as a social home-coming event, proved a most successful one and Kodak pictures taken of the group serve as pleasant mementoes of the occasion.

Those present included, beside the hosts, Mrs. Mary E. Clemens, Miss Ina Clemens, John Clemens, Reuben Clemens, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Gotsch and children, Juanita, LeRoy and Marvin, Mr. and Mrs. Will McGuire, sons, Frank and Marvin, and daughter, Fannie, Jim Maddux, all of Wintersburg; Mr. and Mrs. Don McNulty of Smeltzer and children, Geneva, Gerald, Kenneth and Guenevere, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Johnson, children, Irvin, Edward, Bertha, Ernest, Cecil and the baby, of Orange County Park; Mr. and Mrs. Sinn Teneick, children, Bessie, Floyd and Robert, Mr. and Mrs. John Bingle and two children, Pearl and Nora, of Santa Ana; Mr. and Mrs. Normand Clemens and family, Ella, Carl, Pearl, Clarence, Fay, Marion, Gladys and Florence, and Miss Josephine Perrin of Huntington Beach.

Fred Slater, whose limb has been encased in plaster paris since an operation performed some weeks ago, will have the cast removed Monday and another put on to remain two weeks. He is doing very nicely.

Mrs. Chas. Johnson and three younger children of Orange county Park, are spending the week with her mother, Mrs. Mary E. Clemens, and other relatives hereabouts.

W. F. Slater and family and Miss Jennie Clay and brother, Ralph Clay, drove to Los Angeles for the day Thursday and took Christmas dinner with Mr. Slater's sister, Mrs. Roy Caldwell.

Miss Ruth Jordan is spending the holidays with her people at Fullerton.

On Christmas afternoon, festivities appropriate to the occasion were held by the Japanese at the Wintersburg mission. A tree from which gifts were distributed was a center of attraction and a program consisting of speech making and other forms of entertainment was fully enjoyed by the large number who were in attendance. The children of the G. W. Nichols, W. W. Blaylock and D. D. Gardner families were invited over by the pastor and were presented with pretty gifts which were highly appreciated by them.

The Oceanview school reopens Monday, December 29, after a two weeks' vacation allowed for the holidays. Four days of the past week were spent by the teachers at institute, two days at the county institute at Anaheim and two at the Southern California institute at Los Angeles. All local teachers were in attendance.

Miss Dwyer will resume charge of her room at the opening of school.

Severe Cold Quickly Cured If you do not know how to get rid of a cold quickly should you not consider the experience of others who have found a way of doing so? Mrs. H. O. Barker, Little Falls, N. Y., writes, "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was used by my husband a year or so ago and it quickly cured him of a severe cold."

For the Holiday Season. Do not neglect your Reed's Butter Scotch Patties. The finest candy made. They are delicious. Mater-Gemmel Drug Co. have them.

Garden Grove

GARDEN GROVE, Dec. 27.—Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Galbraith entertained at six o'clock dinner Sunday evening complimentary to their daughter and husband who had just returned from a brief honeymoon to the southern part of the state. The rooms were tastefully decorated for the occasion with poinsettias, many on cochet roses, clematis and asparagus plumosis. Covers were laid for the honorees, Mrs. J. J. Beavers, a sister of the bride and her little son, Mr. and Mrs. W. Rodgers, parents of the groom, Jack Hudson, the hosts and family. Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers will be at home to their friends after January first on a ranch northwest of town where Mr. Rodgers' brother, Frank Rodgers, has erected a cozy bungalow for them. Harvey Rodgers spent a year and a half in overseas service.

The Christmastide was appropriately observed Tuesday evening at the Free Methodist Baptist and program, a tree, Santa Claus and a treat for the members of the Sunday schools and all children present. The classes each brought articles of clothing, food, or money to be used by the committee where the most needed.

The Japanese held their Christmas entertainment at the Methodist church Thursday evening. A number of Americans were invited and a part of the entertainment was in English. Even Santa Claus who distributed presents from the tree was versed in both English and Japanese. Rev. Harkness, pastor of the Methodist church gave an address.

Bulldog Tenacity

To motorists of experience who have used it for years and know its rugged performance under stiff service, the outstanding virtue of the GOULD STORAGE BATTERY is its bulldog tenacity. By this we mean that there is an inbuilt quality that gives exceptionally long life with minimum repairs.

For example, take the DREADNAUGHT PLATES built by an exclusive Gould process by the same men who build plates for the giant Gould Submarine Batteries. No plates can compare with them for ruggedness and tenacity of life. And plates make the battery.

Traffic Experts Select What They Deem Best For Business

"The Pacific R. & H. Chemical Corporation, incorporated under California laws, is a subsidiary of The Roessler & Hasselacher Chemical Company of New York City," says Cotton Mather, local Moreland representative.

"The parent company has had a fleet of trucks since the years when auto trucking was a novelty and considered by some a luxury.

"Their traffic experts know good trucks when they see them. When they incorporated their Pacific coast subsidiary, with Los Angeles its headquarters, and prepared not only to manufacture but to distribute their product by trucks, experts from their traffic department came to Los Angeles, with instructions to pick out the right truck for California service. They picked Morelands.

"This choice will have special interest to prospective purchasers of trucks, if the demands of The Pacific R. & H. Chemical Corporation are considered. Their fleet is used for delivering a liquidified poison gas that is extensively used in Southern California for killing insect pests on orange, lemon and grapefruit trees.

"These insects multiply at an astonishing rate, and if not killed every year, they damage the fruit and greatly reduce the crop, causing losses that easily run into millions of dollars. They are so small and so well protected by nature that they can be killed only by using the most poisonous and rapidly penetrating gas that chemists can produce. The gas used is hydrocyanic acid."

All bodies of American soldiers buried in Europe outside of France will be returned to the United States for permanent burial in national cemeteries or for disposition by relatives when so desired.

1920 INDIAN IS LIGHT, STURDY, POWERFUL

"Standing supreme among motorcycle offerings for 1920 is the new Indian Scout, a middleweight machine that eclipses every past triumph of the industry—new in construction, design and in engineering," says A. C. Crowl, of Carriker & Crowl, Santa Ana and Orange agents for the Indian. "A hundred pounds lighter than the famous Indian Powerplus models, yet powerful, strong and sturdy, the Indian Scout is hailed by eminent engineers and experts as the phenomenon of the age in motorcycle construction.

"All of the salient features making an ideal solo mount are found in this newest of Indian mechanical achievements, the Indian Scout. Low saddle position, lightness of weight, economy of fuel and easy control are the paramount features of the Indian Scout. Riders of the shortest stature can, while seated, place both feet solidly on the ground. The low center of gravity makes the handling of this model easy compared to heavier models. Seventy-five miles to a gallon of gasoline is assured. One hundred miles to a pint of oil is another feature.

"The motor, transmission and clutch are mounted in the Indian Scout as a unit power plant, having three point suspension on a sturdy double tubular frame of unusual strength of design. The motor is of the Powerplus type, with side by side valves, 2 3/4 inch bore and 3 1/16 inch stroke, giving a piston displacement of 36.38 cubic inches. Rated at 5 horse power, the Scout easily and quietly delivers an actual 11 horse power on the dynamometer.

"The weight of the machine is so scientifically distributed and the saddle position so low that the balance and mobility leave nothing to be desired even by the shortest legged rider. In point of flexibility the Indian Scout achieves a new mark in the motor vehicle field, for it can be ridden easily and steadily at a slow walk in high gear, yet pick up to 55 miles per hour within 30 seconds.

"The clutch is of the multiple disc type. The transmission gives three speeds forward and is controlled by a long shifting lever on the right side of the machine.

"In the Indian offerings for 1920 will also be the 'big twin' models, popularly known as the Powerplus motors and all equipped with the exclusive Indian cradle spring frame. The 'V' type motor rated at 7 horse power actually delivers 15 on the dynamometer. The bore is 3 1/8 inches and the stroke 3 1/32 inches, giving a piston displacement of 60.88 cubic inches."

Pick Out the Steepest Hill Then Drive a Mitchell Over it

The steeper the better—if it is not over a 54% grade the Mitchell will climb it with ease.

If it is over 54% no motor car can negotiate it on its own power because that is the limit of traction.

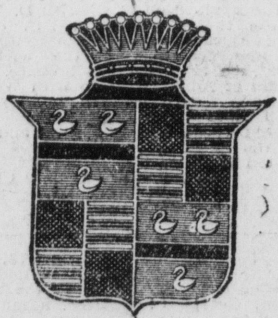

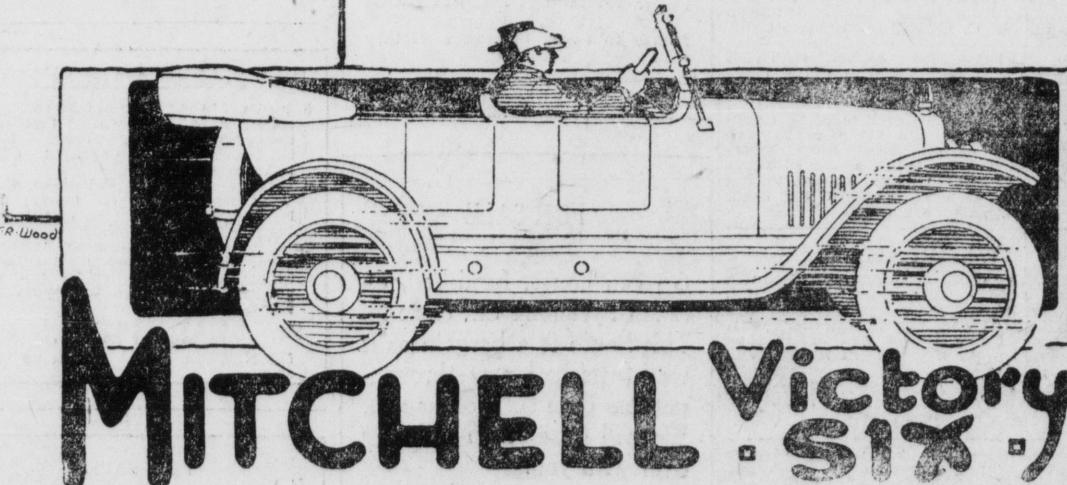

For power and economy you'll find the ideal car in the Mitchell Victory Six—its wonderful Yosemite Record proved its economy—its Catalina Island performance attested to its world of power and its lightning-like dash from San Diego to Los Angeles, banging up a new 6-cylinder stock car record for the run showed its speed.

What more could you expect of any car? Immediate deliveries can now be made.

Main and Second Sts.

MOST of us best appreciate our advantages when we lose them. Cadillac owners find it a wholesome experience to be deprived of their Cadillac once in a while.

Contrast and comparison bring them back to the supreme comfort of the Cadillac, with gratitude and relief.

For it is undeniable that the Cadillac owner is continuously more care-free and comfortable.

He does not congratulate himself especially on a long tour, easily and pleasantly negotiated, in the Cadillac.

He expects it, and counts upon it, and is not disappointed.

And every town trip he takes is a reproduction, in miniature, of the supreme comfort which he enjoys on those longer tours.

To drive, or be driven, in a Cadillac, is a relaxation, not a responsibility—hence its wonderful hold on discriminating motorists the world over.
